LOCAL ELECTRICAL COMBINE OUSTER DECREE APPROVED

State Supreme Court Confirms Action Based on Violation of Anti-Trust Laws.

EXCEPTION MADE IN SINGLE CASE

Listing Bureau May Continue Conditionally—St. Louis Contractors Form New Organization.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 18.—Four St. Louis electrical organizations, admitting violations of State antitrust laws, were ousted by a consent decree filed today by the Supreme Court.

As told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, when the decree, drawn by Assistant Attorneys General John B. Edwards, and Richmond C. Coburn in conference with defense attorneys, was submitted to the Supreme Court for approval, the ouster revokes the charters and prohibits from further business in St. Louis the following organizations: The Electrical Employers' Association, the Electrical Approval Bureau, the Electrical Protective Association and the Electrical Listing Bureau.

One Exception Made.

Judgment against the Listing Bureau, by the terms of the decree, is suspended on condition that practices contrary to anti-trust regulations will be abandoned. The Court will reinstate the ouster if in the future the Listing Bureau fails to comply with all provisions of the judgment.

The Supreme Court's action today terminates litigation extending over a year begun by the Attorney-General on information furnished him by the Post-Dispatch that a combine was fixing prices and controlling activities in the St. Louis electrical industry.

The Electrical Employers' Association was composed of the majority of St. Louis electrical contractors who, the Attorney-General charged, had entered into a conspiracy to fix prices in restraint of trade, with the assistance of the Listing Bureau, which was formed to estimate quantities of materials to assist contractors in figuring bids for work; the Approval Bureau, a board of inspection, and the Protective Association, to which each contractor paid $2.80 a day for each union man in his employ for life and annuity insurance.

This insurance was given to each member of the local electrical workers' union, to the contractor and his employes, including those not members of the Union. The effect of this insurance "premium," so far as cost to the public was concerned, was to establish a union wage scale of $16 a day, of which the working man received but $13.20.

Minimum Profit 33.3 Pct.

Testimony of contractors during the inquiry, disclosed that an agreement existed between them to charge a minimum of 33 1-3 per cent profit, and through this practice and other rules imposed by those dominating the four organizations, competition was effectually stifled.

Experienced building contractors testified that the practices of the four organizations had increased electrical installation prices in St. Louis at least 50 per cent.

The Supreme Court's order requires the defendant companies to pay all costs of the proceeding against them, estimated at nearly $3000.

"Ouster of these companies is very important," Attorney-General Shartel said after the filing of the decree, "because it will prevent other trades from entering into similar associations. Our victory in this case will stop the spreading of a scheme which would soon stifle construction work in the City of St. Louis."

Shartel said he was informed of somewhat similar electrical organizations now operating in Kansas City. He will send copies of the decree to each of them as a warning.

Local Electrical Contractors Form New Association.

Announcement was made today of the formation of a new organization to be known as the Associated Electrical Contractors, by St. Louis men, many of whom were formerly affiliated with the Electrical Employers' Association, one of four organizations ousted by consent decree presented yesterday to the State Supreme Court for approval.

Woman Lawyer to Direct Prison System in Spain

VICTORIA KENT.

Victoria Kent, 35, First of Sex to Practice in Spanish Courts, Hopes to Introduce Modern Ideas in Almost Medieval Plan.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, April 18.—A woman lawyer, Victoria Kent, first of her sex to practice in the Spanish courts, prepared today to play an important role in the new Government of Spain and to introduce into the country's almost medieval prison system the most modern ideas in jails.

The 35-year-old attorney, one of Spain's foremost feminists and the first women to hold an official position under the new republic, has been appointed Supervisor of Prisons.

Her appointment was received by her with happiness, not unmingled with awe at the responsibility. She has always had an intense interest in prison reforms, especially in the welfare of woman prisoners and juvenile delinquents.

"We have the republic at last," she said today, "and I hope that we will be able to make it worth while. I know we will."

She was born at Malaga. Her grandfather was English. She was educated at the University of Madrid and became one of the first woman lawyers in Spanish history.

She is not married and lives in a small apartment with a widowed friend. She was one of the organizers of the Lyceum Club, the first and only active feminist group in Madrid. At the time the club was organized some of the members wished to invite the Queen Mother of King Alfonso, who was then then alive, to be a member. But Miss Kent turned thumbs down on royalty. "No Queen Mother," she said, and she had her way.

She has never compromised with her republicanism.

The first case she ever defended, that of a chauffeur charged with violating traffic laws, marked the first appearance of any woman in a Spanish law court. She won the case. Recently she defended Alvaro Albornoz, now Minister of Public Works, when he was tried, with several others, by a court-martial recently for his participation in the December revolution.

Miss Kent is a firm advocate of legal divorce, which has never existed in Spain. She plans an effort to have the new republic establish divorce laws and also to grant women equal property rights on the same basis as men.

"Spain has been the most backward country in the world in matters pertaining to marriage and women's rights," she said. "Marriage can be made moderately acceptable only when divorce is made legal and equitable laws regarding the division of property are passed."

She is a small, strong, almost masculine type, with dark, wavy, long hair which is not bobbed and which she wears smoothed tightly back from her broad, high forehead. Her complexion is dark. She does not use rouge and always dresses simply, in dark colors.

MOB HANGS NEGRO IN COURTHOUSE YARD

Victim Accused of Entering a Tennessee Home and Attempting to Attack Young Woman.

UNION CITY, Tenn., April 18.—A crowd of men stormed the county jail this afternoon, removed George Smith, Negro, and hanged him from a tree in the courthouse yard.

Smith was held as the Negro who entered a home here last night and attempted to attack a young woman whose screams aroused her father and caused the intruder to flee.

Sheriff J. D. Hubbs said a big crowd of people gathered in front of the county jail at mid-afternoon, smashed the lock on the door, seized the prisoner, carried him to the court house yard and hanged him from a tree.

Sheriff's Wife Outwits Mob, Spirits Negro Away.

By the Associated Press.

HUNTINGTON, Tenn., April 18.—Mrs. J. C. Butler, wife of the Sheriff of Carroll County, outwitted a mob early today and prevented an attempt to storm the jail here and possible lynching of Henry Mauford, a Negro, accused of shooting an officer at Humboldt, Tenn.

The Negro, brought here shortly before another mob stormed the jail at Trenton, Tenn., last night, was hurried from Huntington to another jail after Mrs. Butler told a crowd of men that "you can't run anything like that over me." She said she and Sheriff Butler expected the attempt and were prepared. He hid with the keys and she, unarmed, met the mob. "They were mighty nice about it and did not come in," she said.

Mrs. Butler, the Sheriff and two daughters, Margaret, 20 years old, and Maxine, 16, live at the jail.

The officer, Night Marshal V. H. Pierce, was wounded during an exchange of shots with the Negro, who Pierce said was found robbing a Humboldt cafe. The Negro, also wounded, fled on a freight train and was captured at Jackson, Tenn., after wounding another officer there.

TO URGE THE ELECTRIFICATION OF ENTIRE BRITISH RAIL SYSTEM

Commission's Plan Would Cost $2,000,000,000, Give Jobs to 60,000, Yet Save Money.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 18.—The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, says a scheme "unparalleled in the industrial history of any country" will be outlined in the report of the special commission which has been considering railway electrification.

"The report of the special commission will recommend electricifation of the entire 51,000 miles of British railways, at a cost of nearly $2,000,000,000, says the Herald, adding that it is estimated the development will mean an annual saving of $62,500,000.

The newspaper says the scheme has received the approval of the railways. Carrying out the recommendations would mean employing another 60,000 men for the next 20 years.

BOARD APPROVES LIGHT RATE CUT FOR 191 BIG USERS

Service Commission Dismisses Motion of Muench to Couple Reduction With Valuation Case.

CITY SOUGHT TO AID SMALL CONSUMER

Ruling Holds That Delay Until Domestic Schedule Is Passed Upon Is Not Justified.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 18.—Lower electric rates for large commercial users in St. Louis and St. Louis County providing an annual saving of approximately $383,000 on the present volume of consumption, will become effective April 27 by consent of the State Public Service Commission.

The commission yesterday issued an order dismissing a motion of City Counselor Muench to suspend the reduction pending determination by the commission of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. valuation and rate case in which hearings were concluded March 26. The city's motion to consolidate the reduction case with the valuation case also was denied without prejudice, the commission reserving jurisdiction to revise the commercial rates upward or downward if it sees fit.

191 Consumers Benefit.

The chief beneficiaries of the lower rates are hotels, office buildings, theaters and large stores and apartment buildings. There are 179 of these in St. Louis, 12 in St. Louis County and a few elsewhere in Missouri territory served by Union Electric. Some East St. Louis consumers also will receive the reduction.

Averaging 20 per cent, the saving will amount to as much as $8000 a year to some large consumers.

The schedule was filed by Union Electric Light and Power Co. March 27, the day after the conclusion of hearings in the case in which City Counselor Muench seeks a reduction of about $1,000,000 a year for domestic consumers. It makes no change in the general rate schedule, but reclassifies customers whose use is principally for lighting so as to give them the benefit of the lower wholesale power rate. This applies to consumers having a demand of 150 kilowatts ore more.

Commission Gives Reason.

In asking for suspension, City Counselor Muench argued that the reduction was made by Union Electric to forestall and embarrass the commission in consideration of the valuation and domestic rate reduction case, and might deprive the domestic consumers of a deserved reduction.

The commission held that in view of the fact that several months must elapse before the domestic case is decided, it would not be justified meanwhile in depriving commercial users of the proffered reduction. It found also that there was no showing that the reduction would result in discrimination.

The average rate paid in 1930 by the commercial consumers affected by this reduction was 2.04 cents a kilowatt hour, compared with 1.77 cents by power consumers and 4.32 cents by domestic consumers.

There will be a supervising director, to which post John R. Alpine of New York has been appointed.

Director-General Francis I. Jones will be retained in that position, with A. D. Lewis of Illinois as Assistant Director-General. Lewis is also will be superintendent of the mining division of the service.

Service Nationwide.

The veterans' service will be nationwide in its scope and the farm employment service will be expanded. There also will be a director of information.

In announcing the reorganization, Secretary Doak said:

It likewise will undertake in the broadest sense to take care of interstate labor placements in co-operation with employers and employes. . . .

"In addition to these already well-organized bureaus, the industrial activities of the United States employment service will be reorganized on a basis which will afford every opportunity of placing employes in contact with jobs and in giving employers a ready field from which to draw all needed labor necessary to carry forward any kind of work.

Seven Special Divisions.

There will likewise be a director of the veterans' service, a director of the farm service, a chief clerk, a director of information and a special representative.

"There will be 49 State directors, one for each of the states and the District of Columbia. The duties of these officers will be to direct the work of their respective states and to co-operate with state agencies and to work in conjunction with the United States employment service. The number of suboffices within any of the states will be determined from time to time as circumstances justify.

"There will be a director-general and an assistant director-general working under the supervision of the supervising director, who in turn will report directly to the Secretary of Labor."

Besides the supervising director and director-general, the Secretary announced the following personnel:

Director of the veterans' service, J. A. Shaw.

With the President and Mrs. Hoover were their son, Allan; Secretary and Mrs. Hyde; Justice and Mrs. Stone; Solicitor-General and Mrs. Thacher; Assistant Secretary Heath of the Treasury; Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the Navy and Mark Sullivan.

TWO KILLED 25 HURT IN RAILWAY WRECK

New York - St. Louis Train Hits Derailed Freight Cars Near Tunnel.

By the Associated Press.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 18.—Two enginemen were killed and about 25 passengers injured when the Panhandle Limited on the Pennsylvania Railroad crashed into derailed freight cars just outside of a tunnel at Spruce Creek, 22 miles east of here, last night. The train was traveling from New York to St. Louis.

The dead: W. J. Keane, engineer, Harrisburg, and R. E. Lock, fireman, Harrisburg.

The engine and two cars—a combination baggage and smoker and a day coach—left the rails. Railroad reports said the passenger train ran into the derailed freight cars before it could be flagged.

Passengers were thrown from their seats and, scrambling for the doors, were showered with glass as lights and windows were broken.

John Buckelcamp, Huntington, Pa., a passenger, was removed to a hospital there, suffering from back injuries. Other passengers received medical attention at Huntingdon.

Main-line tracks were blocked throughout the night and trains were re-routed by way of Lock Haven, Williamsport and the Petersburg branch.

Two tracks were open at 5 a. m. Other fast passenger trains were delayed from two to six hours. They included two sections of the American fast St. Louis train.

Among the injured were: Edna Smith, Kansas City, Mo., left hand cut; Peter Karhis, Farrell, Pa.; Spires Koodes, Farrell, Pa.; Joseph Markin, 234 South Ninth street, Lacrosse, Wis.; L. Millinger, New York; Mrs. Henry B. Veatcher, Evansville, Ind.; W. W. Cherry, Trenton, N. SPAIN PLANS ELECTION OF AN ASSEMBLY EARLY IN MAY Republican Government Proposes to Write New Constitution and Form Permanent Administration.

CATALONIANS IN ACCORD WITH MADRID

Col. Macia Pledges Co-operation at Barcelona and Will Submit Demands of Separatists to a Convention.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, April 18—The Republican Government plans now to hold elections in the early part of May for members of a National Assembly, the Associated Press learned today from reliable sources. The present plans are to speed up the elections and to hold them, at the latest, within the first fortnight in May instead of in June, as was scheduled by the former Government. A new Republican constitution will be written and a constitutional government formulated to succeed the provisional government.

The new Provisional Government today hailed the victory of three of its Ministers, who, after an airplane flight to Barcelona last night, obtained from the Catalonian President, Col. Francisco Masia, a pledge to submit Separatists demands and demands for political autonomy to the projected constitutional convention, meanwhile co-operating with Madrid.

The accord reached at Barcelona removes the most pressing of the political problems facing the Junta set up by Don Niceto Alcala Zamora, Provisional President. Alejandro Lerroux, Minister of State, said the other pressing Separatist movement, that of the Basque Provinces, has not taken definite form and is causing no apprehension.

Accord Cheered by Catalonians.

Col. Macia, at Barcelona, announced the accord with Madrid from a Government House balcony to a cheering crowd, informing them that it had been decided that the Catalonian republic would cease to exist for the time being but would bear the name "Commonwealth of Catalonia," a unit in the Spanish Republican Federation.

The Barcelona negotiations were carried on by Fernando de los Rios, Minister of Justice; Marcelino Domingo, Minister of Instruction, and Luis Nicolau Dolwer, Minister of Economy, a Catalan. Prior to their departure, Lerroux had said the Madrid Government would not have hesitated to use force to maintain Spanish Spain as a whole.

Gen. Damaso Berenguer, who became Premier of Spain when Gen. Primo de Rivera relinquished power, last night gave himself up to police after reading in Madrid newspapers that the Government wanted him to answer for his responsibility for execution of the two rebel leaders, Capt. Fermyn Galan and Garcia Hernandez, at Jaca last December.

Berenguer Allowed Freedom.

Miguel Maura, new Minister of Interior, told Berenguer that no formal charges had been made against him and that he could go free until there were. Berenguer gave him his word of honor as a gentleman and a soldier to present himself when needed. It is considered probable that the charges will be filed Monday.

Maura has instructed newly appointed provincial Governors to report to the Government any cases in which priests used their churches for spreading political propaganda. There is no formal law forbidding preaching of politics in the churches, but the Government feels it wise to restrain such procedure for the present.

The Governors were told to remain neutral in questions relating to the church and not to attend ceremonies in their official capacities, adding that they were "always to maintain maximum courtesy with the ecclesiastical authorities."

To Recognize Monarchy's Debts.

The provisional Government announced that it would recognize all debts of the monarchy, the immediate result being strengthening of stocks and securities on the exchange. It is understood that there has as yet been no draft on the $60,000,000 credit arranged for the previous Government by the J. P. Morgan interests in New York.

Leaving Nicaraguan Homes and Businesses After Washington Says It Can't Give General Aid.

AMERICANS, BRITISH ALARMED AT RULING

New Attacks by Rebels Feared When Navy Withdraws Guard — Fourth Ship Ordered to Coast.

By the Associated Press.

PUERTO CABEZAS, Nicaragua, April 18.—United States citizens in the Puerto Cabezas district, harried by insurgent and outlaw attacks during the last week, were reported today by R. J. Salassi, local manager of the Standard Fruit and Steamship Co., to be evacuating their homes and businesses.

The action follows the killing of nine United States citizens in this area since Friday of last week and receipt of a telegram from Alvin T. Rowe, American Consul at Bluefields, warning that the United States Government cannot undertake general protection of United States citizens.

Rowe's telegram said:

"Advise Americans this Government cannot undertake their general protection in Nicaracua with American forces. The State Department recommends that Americans who feel insecure withdraw from the country or seek protection in coast towns, where they may be evacuated if necessary. Americans remain in Nicaragua at their own risk and must not expect protection from American forces."

The message has been received with consternation throughout this section, not only by Americans but by British citizens, who feel their own problem of protection may be gravely complicated by the Washington Government's decision.

Further Raids Feared.

Refugees from outside Puerto Cabezas say the insurgents appear to be most interested in killing Americans and Jamaicans and in destroying American property. Although all is quiet here, it is feared that as soon as naval protection is withdrawn the insurgents will attempt to overwhelm the local National Guard, kill Americans and destroy all American property.

A Bluefields dispatch says 20 National Guardsmen have been ordered from Bluefields to reinforce those under Col J. Marston already in the Puerto Cabezas area. Some of Col. Marston's patrols, reconnoitering yesterday near Cape Gracias a Dios, taken during the week by insurgents, captured 18 of the outlaws and returned with them to Puerto Cabezas.

Three American naval vessels are on duty in the Bluefields-Puerto Cabezas vicinity and a fourth will be there with arrival of the U. S. S. Rochester, ordered to Bluefields last night from the Canal Zone. The cruiser Sacramento is also at Bluefields, the cruiser Asheville at Cape Gracias a Dios, and the Memphis at Puerto Cabezas. The four cruisers carry 174 marines and 1800 sailors.

Stimson Warns U. S. Cannot Undertake General Protection.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18. — United States citizens in Nicaragua have to choose between fleeing to coast towns or depending on Nicaraguan troops for protection. This alternative was placed before them by Secretary of State Stimson in a statement that "this Government cannot undertake general protection of Americans throughout that country with American forces."

The text of the warning, dispatched through Minister Hanna at Managua and Consul Rowe at Bluefields, follows:

"In view of the outbreak of banditry in portions of Nicaragua hitherto free from such violence you will advise American citizens that this Government cannot undertake general protection of Americans throughout that country with American forces.

"To do so would lead to difficulties and commitments which this Government does not propose to undertake. Therefore the department recommends to all Americans who do not feel secure under the protection afforded them by the Nicaraguan Government through the Nicaraguan National Guard to withdraw from the country, or at least to the coast towns whence they can be protected or evacuated in case of necessity. Those who remain do so at their own risk and must not expect American forces to be sent inland to their aid."

Although in some quarters this announcement was interpreted as somewhat changing previous policy, the State Department held it was in accord with precedent; similar warnings have been issued numerous times in the past.

30 Refugees Reach U. S., Tell of Insurgents' Cruelty.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD STEAMSHIP CEFALU, April 18.—(By Radio to the Associated Press.)—Thirty refugees, some of whose relatives were killed in insurgent raids in Nicaragua, reached American waters early today and steamed up the Mississippi River for New Orleans.

All flags of the Cefalu were flown at half mast for Capt. Harlen Pefley, U. S. M. C., Philadelphia, and William Selser, Jackson, Miss., who fell in a fight with bandits at Logtown. Their bodies are being brought to the United States for burial.

The refugees said nine Americans were killed and that the rebel forces won several victories over the native troops.

"The lives of all non-Nicaraguans in the interior are in jeopardy now," said Dr. George Eugene of the Canal Zone, a passenger. He said the Cefalu passed Cape Gracias a Adios and saw the settlement burning and American planes dropping bombs on the bandits' boats, loaded with loot. As the ships passed out of sight, he declared, they saw the airplanes displaying the American flag, indicating victory.

Eleanor Bond, Sarasota, Fla., said for four days and four nights she stood on the deck of the Cefalu in Puerto Cabezas Harbor and watched the bandits on the shore.

She said the Americans sought safety of ships after the rebel forces had attacked the fruit farm of the Standard Fruit & Steamship Co. and killed nine Americans. In the fight, she said, the bandits hacked the American overseer to pieces and killed her brother, William H. Bond Jr.

James Lloyd and Cathey Wilson, both of Fayetteville, Tenn., were among the passengers. Both were suffering from shock. They said they were the only two survivors of the fruit farm battle.

Standard Fruit Co. Faces Curtailment of Operations.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, April 18.—Officers of the Standard Fruit and Steamship Co. express grave concern over the continuation of their operations in the interior of Nicaragua in the face of raids by outlaws and the announcement of Secretary of State Stimson that American Marines no longer will be used to police the banana-producing jungles.

The company, which has been operating in Nicaragua for 10 years and has farms extending 65 miles into the interior from Puerto Cabezas, announced through John J. Brownson, superintendent of its foreign department, that it was faced with curtailment if not suspension of much of its fruit business under the Stimson policy.

Fears for the safety of Albert and Edwin Fagot, brother merchants, and their families caught in the looting of Cape Gracias a Dios, were allayed with receipt of a radiogram from the U. S. S. Asheville at the cape, stating they had been taken on board the battleship. The message, recevied by Mrs. Lucille Gomez, New Orleans, said: "Town burned the 15th. All safe aboard Asheville."

GANGSTER GETS YEAR FOR U. S. TAX-DODGING

Sam Guzik, Brother of Capone Chief, Pleads Guilty to Federal Charge.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Sam Guzik, whose brother, Jack, is reputedly the business manager of Scarface Al Capone's enterprises, pleaded guilty of income tax dodging yesterday and was sentenced to a year and a day in Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., and was fined $2500 by United States Judge James H. Wilkerson. Judge Wilkerson granted Guzik a stay of execution until June 1, to permit him to straighten out his affairs.

Guzik's plea brought to six the number of income tax cases in which the Government, to date, has been successful against gangsters. Guzik followed in the steps of Frank Nitti, another Capone gangster. Nitti was sentenced to 18 months on a plea of guilty. Jack Guzik stood trial, but was convicted and sentenced to five years and a day. He appealed.

Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, reputed "beer barons," also have pleaded guilty, but their sentences are awaiting the outcome of an appeal by Ralph Capone, brother of Al. Ralph Capone was sentenced to three years.

In addition, Al Capone recently was sentenced to six months for contempt of court for failing to respond to a summons from a Federal grand jury that was investigating incomes.

All of the men except Sam Guzik are listed by Chicago authorities as "public enemies."

Failure to file returns for 1927, 1928 and 1929 was the charge against Guzik. Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green told the Court that Guzik's income totaled more than $380,000 for these years, and that it was derived primarily from slot machine and stock market operations. Guzik's attorney, William F. Waugh, said his client's stock market operations resulted in a net loss of $112,000, and that, as a result, he was unable to defray the cost of an expensive trial.

NORRIS CHARGES POWER INTERESTS WITH DECEPTION

Nebraskan Says Nation-Wide Propaganda Seeks to Divert Attention From Trade Board's Inquiry.

CALLS COMPARISON OF RATES MISLEADING

Condemns Distribution of Pamphlet to Millions of Stockholders in Utilities and Consumers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The power interests were charged yesterday by Senator Norris with attempting to divert attention from the Trade Commission's investigation of their activities by a nationwide propaganda campaign.

The Nebraska Republican, in a formal statement, based his charge on a pamphlet written by Paul S. Clapp, managing director of the National Electric Light Association, which Norris said had been distributed to millions of stockholders in public utilities companies and consumers of electricity.

"While the Federal Trade Commission in its investigation of the Power Trust is almost daily revealing some gigantic scheme on the part of that monopoly to control the generation and distribution of electricity for the people of the United States," Norris said, "the trust is trying to divert attention from true conditions by continuing this nationwide propaganda of deception. . . .

"The very fact that this article—an alleged answer to arguments made against the trust's activities—has been within a comparatively few days placed in the hands of millions of electric light consumers and holders of public utility bonds and stocks all over the nation, it seems to me, is a demonstration in itself that the Power Trust is a living, actual reality and that its activities extend to the most minute corners of the country."

Norris said the particular fault he found with "the trust operations is that their methods have been so often disreputable, so often unfair, almost always secret, and many times downright dishonest."

Norris said Clapp, in comparing electric rates in towns with municipal plants with private rates, used some cities in which there are no municipal taxes and the entire running costs are paid out of profits from the municipal plants. He cited Chanute, Kan., and South River, N. J.

"The figures show," Norris added, "that the municipal plants in the United States, while not making as good a showing as is made by the larger systems in Canada, are nevertheless so far ahead of any showing which can be made anywhere in the United States by the Power Trust that further argument seems almost useless."

ject of the new organization sets forth that it is formed to "stimulate industry and create work, particularly in this field and in all collateral industries of building and contracting.

"This organization is not affiliated with the Approval Board, the Listing Bureau or the Protective Association of the electrical industry," the statement continues, "and is not to be confused with any association wherein O. E. Jennings is an officer or a member."

Indictments against Jennings, International Electrical Workers' Union delegate, and Chester Chapline, electrical contractor, on a charge of conspiracy to violate State antitrust laws, will be dismissed.

Assistant Attorney-General John B. Edwards and Circuit Attorney Miller informed Circuit Judge Ryan yesterday that an agreement had been made to nolle pros the indictments of Jennings and Chapline pursuant to an arrangement with defense attorneys who consented to the ouster decree.

The Circuit Attorney explained that the indictments would be dismissed because the object of legal action on the part of the State was accomplished. "As a practical matter," Miller said, "there is considerable doubt that with the Supreme Court ouster in effect, criminal intent could be proved against the individual defendants."

Officers of the new contractors' organization, three of whom were witnesses in the quo warranto suit brought by Attorney-General Shartel which resulted in the ouster decree, are: Roy Holkins, president; Emmet Barnes, vice president; Harry Faig, treasurer, and John O'Mara, secretary.

U. S. TARIFF POLICY HAS BROKEN DOWN, EDITOR DECLARES

Head of New York Journal of Commerce Says Duties Have Failed to Protect Foreign Trade.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—H. Parker Willis, editor of the Journal of Commerce, New York, told the American Academy of Political and Social Science today that there was "little or no doubt that the present tariff policy of the United States has broken down."

"I think," he said, "it has broken down for two reasons. In the first place it has entirely failed to protect what is possibly our largest industry—foreign trade itself. It has broken down in the second place because it is paying too much for protection. That is to say it is losing to some industries an export market which they need and must have, because of its decision to give other industries overprotection—a degree of protection which they do not need in order to maintain themselves."

Views of a Briton.

Sir George Paish of London, said the last increase in American tariff "tolled around the world like a death knell, causing consternation to millions of people who wanted and needed American trade."

"The United States," he said, "prevented them by this act from paying debts they honestly wanted to pay.

"The world is in a virtual condition of bankruptcy. We have postponed the consequences of that great crime, the World War, and now after 12 years we are in a position where our debts must be met. Since the World War we have got along on credit. The world has got into a debt which it seems it cannot meet."

Discussing "our future relations with Latin America," Dr. Raymond L. Buell, research director, Foreign Policy Association, New York, said that while there had been a big improvement in the Latin-American policy of the United States during the last 10 years, there was ground for further improvement.

"I refer to the present situation in Cuba and to the American attitude toward revolutions in Central America," he said. "Whether rightly or wrongly, the Cuban people believe that because of the Platt amendment they cannot hold a revolution.

Abrogation of Platt Amendment.

"There is only one way out of the dilemma; that is the abrogation of the Platt amendment, and the adoption of a policy of nonintervention in Cuban affairs. A second unsolved problem confronts us in Central America. While we have quickly recognized a revolutionary Government in Panama, we cannot do so in the five Central American republics because of the 1923 recognition treaty.

"The 1923 treaty expires in 1934. Some time before that date the State Department should call a new Central American conference to make less drastic the prohibition against revolution and to restore Central American machinery for the maintenance of peace and the development of unity."

Smoot Says Present Tariff Aids Business Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 18.—Senator Reed Smoot (Rep.), Utah, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, declared here yesterday that "one of the most powerful influences working toward business recovery is the tariff act which Congress passed in 1930."

"Without additional tariff protection the country would have been deluged by foreign goods, agricultural and industrial, throughout the period of depression," he said. "The enactment of the tariff law gave American producers a new margin of protection which enabled them to hold their own against cheap foreign goods in spite of the depression.

"Critics of the tariff have taken the position that the decline in our international trade is a calamity. Under the circumstances it seems to have been a blessing. No one of sound judgment could wish the volume of imports from abroad to increase when the domestic market is glutted with a surplus of every commodity and when domestic industry has been curtailed in response to a smaller demand."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The statement of Chairman Snell of the House Rules Committee in New York Thursday night that tariff protection has "gone the limit" is hailed by Democrats as an admission of their charges that the Hawley-Smoot act has contributed to the economic depression.

Senator Hull of Tennessee, in a statement through the Democratic National Committee, said "When a rabid high tariff standpatter such as Representative Snell confesses that high tariff protection has 'gone the limit' this is proof positive that typical sky-high Republican tariff policies have reacted to a most damaging and destructive extent."

Mr. Fischer, who had attained national distinction since he joined the orchestra as a bassoon player 43 years ago, died yesterday after a long illness at De Paul Hospital He would have been 63 years old on May 25. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Daisy Hays Fischer, 5854 Cabanne avenue, and a daughter, Mrs. R. G. Kemmet.

Came to St. Louis at 19.

His fortieth anniversary with the orchestra was celebrated at a concert in 1927. He had come to St. Louis at 19 as an honor graduate of the Royal Academy of Music in Munich, Bavaria.

In addition to the bassoon—his favorite instrument—he played the violin, viola, piano and organ, and served as a church organist for a time after his arrival here. He spent part of three years on tour as a musician with opera companies and as assistant conductor of Innes' Band, but made his home here after his marriage in 1892.

In 1895 he became assistant conductor of the old Choral Symphony, and continued in that position after it became the St. Louis Symphony in 1907. He served under Alfred Ernst, Max Zach, Rudolph Ganz and the later succession of guest conductors in the direction of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Directed Pageant Choral.

Mr. Fischer was selected to direct the Pageant Choral Society which grew from the Pageant and Masque of St. Louis in 1914, directing it and the Concordia Seminary Chorus for 11 years. For the last two years he has been conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra.

He received frequent invitations to lead orchestras and choral groups in other cities . He arranged the music and conducted the stage spectacle, "Liberty," in the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia. He composed and conducted the orchestral and choral music for the Missouri Centennial at the Coliseum in 1921. He wrote two academic works on music. Fellow musicians and critics applauded his immense musical erudition and meticulous service to the spirit of the masters.

War-Time Activities.

Mr. Fischer, who became an American citizen soon after his arrival from Munich, engaged wholeheartedly in war-time activities. He was proud of the fact that, despite his German birth, he was chosen because of his patriotic services to conduct the music for an Armistice day celebration in St. Louis.

At the funeral the casket will be placed in the orchestra pit at the center aisle of the Odeon, below the vacant dais of the conductor, about which the string choirs of the orchestra will be grouped. The orchestra will play Grieg's song of farewell "To Spring," and Bach's Air for the G String. Miss Traubel will sing Wagner's "Dreams." The funeral address will be delivered by Percival Chubb, leader of the Ethical Society.

PRINCE BIBESCO'S INJURY LAID TO VULTURE WHICH HIT PLANE

Damage to Propeller Causes Forced Landing in Bengal; Three Other Persons Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, April 18.—A vulture which flew into a propeller of an airplane was indirectly the cause of the serious injury yesterday of four persons, including Prince George Bibesco of Rumania. Their plane made a forced landing between Moghal Sarai and Gaya, Bengal.

The Prince, who is president of the International Aeronautical Federation, was flying with two Rumanian pilots and an English mechanic from Le Bourget, France, to Indo-China in a three-motored 16-passenger transport plane in the interest of international aviation.

Landing at Bamrauli Airdrome, the Prince reported a vulture had flown into one of the propellers a mile from Allahabad, the day's starting point. It was not thought any serious damage had been done. After refueling, the plane took off for Calcutta but trouble with the propeller caused a forced landing on the Bahabua road. The machine ran into a ditch and the fuel exploded, setting the plane afire.

The injured were taken to Benares Hospital, where Prince Bibesco was the first to regain consciousness.

KING OF SIAM BOARDS SPECIAL TRAIN FOR U. S.

Leaves Vancouver, B. C., With Queen After Brief Welcoming Ceremonies.

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 18.—The King and Queen of Siam, bound on a half-way-around-the-world journey for treatment of the King's eyes, sped to New York through the Canadian Rockies on a special train today.

With King Prajadhipok's participation in public receptions at Victoria and Vancouver prevented by a slight attack of bronchitis, the welcoming ceremonies for the royal party here yesterday were brief. The King went directly from the liner Empress of Japan, which brought the party from the Orient, to the train and retired.

The train left here at 11:59 p. m. and will enter the United States at Portal, N. D., at 10:50 p. m. tomorrow. Stops have been arranged at Minneapolis and Chicago, and the destination, Westchester, N. Y., will be reached about noon Wednesday.

In simple ceremonies here, Prince Svasti, father of the Queen, represented the sovereign before Mayor Louis D. Taylor.

During the day on shipboard the King, in morning clothes and a silk hat, visited the crew and officers, conferring the Order of the White Elephant on Commander Samuel Robinson, under whose direction the liner set a Trans-Pacific record.

After an operation for removal of a cataract from his left eye, the King and his party will be guests on a Long Island estate. The King and Queen will be honored at a State reception by President Hoover in Washington.

Queen Rambai Barni captivated official welcomers by her grace and beauty. Described as the most beautiful woman in Siam, the Queen has brought with her many trunks full of the latest mode in gowns, selected by a Parisian dressmaker resident in Siam, who went especially to Paris to acquire the wardrobe.

The Queen's tastes are simple. Thursday night at the reception in Victoria she was dressed in a cloud gray gown which fell to her ankles. A sable and ermine wrap was about her shoulders. Queen Rambai uses no makeup. A single diamond ring on one finger was her only jewelry.

SAYS MEAT SHOP PICKETS CHASED AND SLUGGED HIM

Dr. Richard Kimmel Tells Police of Attack by Two Men at 2838 Union Boulevard.

Dr. Richard Kimmel, a physician, 2864A Union boulevard, walking along Union today was chased and slugged by two pickets for a meatcutters' union, who apparently thought he was going to enter a store they had denominated as "unfair," Dr. Kimmel reported to police. The doctor said he found the sidewalk blocked in front of a store at 2838 Uion by a man carrying a white, red and black umbrella, which proclaimed the store was "unfair" to organized labor in general and particularly to a specified meatcutters' union.

When he remonstrated at being blocked, Dr. Kimmel said, the man kicked at him and called a companion from an automobile across the street. Both men chased the doctor two blocks and the companion struck him on the head with a wrench, whereupon both men fled, the doctor reported.

MILLIKEN WORE OVERALLS TO MEET GUESTS, WIFE SAYS

Called Her Friends Cheapskates and "Nearly Had Fit" When She Made Him Pay Check.

MECHANICS ALWAYS AROUND THE HOUSE

On One Occasion, She Relates, He Threw Guests' Clothing From Room and Went to Bed.

Mrs. Mildred Carver Milliken, who is suing to divorce John T. Milliken Jr., in a portion of her deposition not previously made public, has recounted additional incidents of their married life on which she bases her suit.

One concerns a visit made to their home at West Palm Beach shortly after their marriage in February, 1929. Friends of hers arrived from Pittsburg, Pa., and Milliken, she said, met them at the train in overalls.

"The whole week that they were there he complained to them that they were an expense," she testified. "One night we went to a place where there was dancing and he nearly had a fit when I made him pay the check. I suppose it was about $100."

"What was that for?" Randolph Laughlin, Milliken's attorney inquired. "Oh, White Rock, and stuff we had around the table. There were about eight of us.

Called Guests Cheapskates.

"He left the check on the table for the guests to pay and was furious when they didn't take it. He called them cheap skates and everything else. He thought the guests should pay the bill because they had been sponging at his house for a week, and that the least they could do would be to pay the check when we left. He didn't say that, he just intimated it.

"The next night they invited us to dinner. He said: 'Fine, we'll get back at you for what you ate at our house.' He ordered everything on the menu. It was laughable, but I nearly died I was so embarrassed."

Milliken, who has an income of $1200 a month from the estate of his father, a millionaire chemical manufacturer, was seldom supplied with ready cash, his wife said. She told of asking her mother to stay with them for a month after the marriage. Her mother helped out, she said, by giving her what she would have spent at a hotel.

"Mother Paid the Bills."

"When we would go out in the automobile mother would offer to buy the gas," Mrs. Milliken continued. "J. T. would say, 'fine'. We would go to a restaurant, there would be a couple of mechanics with us, and mother would pay the bill. That would be fine, too." The mechanics were employed by Milliken to assist him in his boat business.

One of them stayed at the Milliken apartment for a time after they returned to St. Louis, she said "He told me one night he and J. T. were going out the next night," she testified. "He didn't have th decency to slip out, no,' I was jus told; 'I'm going out.'

"So to counteract that I calle J. T.'s mother and his aunt an had them over the next night. kept them here playing cards until it was too late to go out.

Threw Wraps Off Bed.

"Night after night I would wan to do something, or just sit a home, but no, he had to go dow to the boathouse and be with al those mechanics and people lik that. I had either to sit at th river or go somewhere by mysel and I knew if I went by myself h would be out with some toughie disgracing himself."

Whenever they went out together, Mrs. Milliken said, they woul have to leave as soon as her hu band became bored. She told of dinner party at their apartment which there were several guest among them a friend of hers fro Pittsburg.

"After dinner we went into t living room," she said, "and deci ed to play cards. J. T. said h wouldn't play and just went in the bedroom, threw all the wra of the guests out of there and we to bed."

Milliken is contesting the divor action and has filed an alienati of affections suit for $350,0 against his wife's relatives. In h answer to the divorce petition made a blanket denial of her al gations of indignities, and fil counter charges.

"The whole week that they were there he complained to them that they were an expense," she testified. "One night we went to a place where there was dancing and he nearly had a fit when I made him pay the check. I suppose it was about $100."

"What was that for?" Randolph Laughlin, Milliken's attorney inquired. "Oh, White Rock, and stuff we had around the table. There were about eight of us.

Called Guests Cheapskates.

"He left the check on the table for the guests to pay and was furious when they didn't take it. He called them cheap skates and everything else. He thought the guests should pay the bill because they had been sponging at his house for a week, and that the least they could do would be to pay the check when we left. He didn't say that, he just intimated it.

"The next night they invited us to dinner. He said: 'Fine, we'll get back at you for what you ate at our house.' He ordered everything on the menu. It was laughable, but I nearly died I was so embarrassed."

Milliken, who has an income of $1200 a month from the estate of his father, a millionaire chemical manufacturer, was seldom supplied with ready cash, his wife said. She told of asking her mother to stay with them for a month after the marriage. Her mother helped out, she said, by giving her what she would have spent at a hotel.

"Mother Paid the Bills."

"When we would go out in the automobile mother would offer to buy the gas," Mrs. Milliken continued. "J. T. would say, 'fine'. We would go to a restaurant, there would be a couple of mechanics with us, and mother would pay the bill. That would be fine, too." The mechanics were employed by Milliken to assist him in his boat business.

One of them stayed at the Milliken apartment for a time after they returned to St. Louis, she said. "He told me one night he and J. T. were going out the next night," she testified. "He didn't have the decency to slip out, no, I was just told: 'I'm going out.'

"So to counteract that I called J. T.'s mother and his aunt and had them over the next night. I kept them here playing cards until it was too late to go out.

Threw Wraps Off Bed.

"Night after night I would want to do something, or just sit at home, but no, he had to go down to the boathouse and be with all those mechanics and people like that. I had either to sit at the house or go somewhere by myself, and I knew if I went by myself he would be out with some toughies disgracing himself."

Whenever they went out together, Mrs. Milliken said, they would have to leave as soon as her husband became bored. She told of a dinner party at their apartment at which there were several guests, among them a friend of hers from Pittsburg.

"After dinner we went into the living room," she said, "and decided to play cards. J. T. said he wouldn't play and just went into the bedroom, threw all the wraps of the guests out of there and went to bed."

Milliken is contesting the divorce action and has filed an alienation of affections suit for $350,000 against his wife's relatives. In his answer to the divorce petition he made a blanket denial of her allegations of indignities, and filed counter charges.

Motorist Says Man Boarded Machine and Held Revolver Against Him as He Drove.

An automobile and $20 were taken from Jack Miller, 1413A Belt avenue by two men who held him up at 4465 North Taylor avenues yesterday afternoon after forcing him to drive to that point from Vandeventer and Enright avenues, where he had made a boulevard stop.

Miller told police that one of the men boarded his car as the two machines drew alongside, and held a revolver against him as he drove, the other man following in the other car.

Owen Hamill, 2842 Gamble street, reported his purse containing $50 was taken from him by two men who crowded him as he was getting off a Taylor avenue street car at Chouteau avenue and Kingshighway boulevard. He attempted to catch them by following in an automobile, he said, but failed to find them in the car when he caught up with it.

3 BROTHERS DROWN IN RIVER

Whirlpool Throws Boat Against Dike Near Steubenville, O.

By the Associated Press.

STEUBENVILLE, O., April 18.—The bodies of three brothers, who were thrown into the Ohio River when a whirlpool pitched their boat against a dike in the back channel at Castonia, near here, were recovered last night after scores of river men had dragged the stream.

Samuel, 11 years old; George, 14, and Theodore, 17, sons of Nick Gickis, Steubenville mill worker, were rowing from Brown's Island, where they had been plowing a field on their father's truck farm, when the accident occurred. They were carried over the dike into a 15-foot pool and were sucked under by a strong undercurrent. One of the boys, thought to be Theodore, held on to the dike for a short time, but the force of the water shook him loose.

HERO TO ASK HOOVER'S ADVICE ON COLLEGE

Bryan Untiedt Gets Offer of Four-Year Scholarship, but Has Eye on West Point.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., April 18.—Bryan Untiedt, 13-year-old hero of the bus tragedy of the Pleasant Hill School, near Towner, Colo., intends to get "a lot of good advice" from President Hoover concerning his future education.

Bryan was at a luncheon for the bus survivors here yesterday when he heard he had been offered a four-year scholarship by Washington College at Chestertown, Md.

The Associated Press dispatch telling of the award was read at the luncheon and Bryan's schoolmates cheered as did other guests in the hotel dining room.

Bryan did not respond with a speech but he told newspapermen he appreciated the offer.

"I'd like to go to West Point," he said. "That's the idea I've always had and if there is any chance of getting there I'm going to try my best to pass the examination. Of course, I'm not in high school yet. I've got another year before the four years of high school.

"I plan to get a lot of good advice from President Hoover when I see him in Washington."

Bryan, who strove valiantly to keep school mates from freezing to death when the school bus became stalled in a blizzard in which five of the children died, will be a guest of Hoover at the White House.

H. A. Untiedt thinks his son should "do the eighth grade twice, just to get a good grasp on things."

Mrs. Untiedt characterized as a "marvelous opportunity" the award by Washington College. The mother said she was not qualified to advise her son about his education, saying she could only teach him to differentiate between right and wrong and emphasize the power of Divine guidance.

The 15 survivors of the bus tragedy are here for a week's visit as guests of the Denver Post.

Mrs. Basse, clad in nightclothes, had collapsed on the floor of the bedroom, which was connected with the kitchen by an open door. Basse, who was an invalid, was in a chair in the kitchen near a partly opened window. He was dressed.

Mrs. Celestine Drehle, Mrs. Basse's sister, calling, found them Firemen worked over the mother and son with inhalators for some time, but were unsuccessful with Mrs. Basse. Finding signs of life in Basse, he was sent to City Hospital. The police were inclined to think asphyxiation had been caused in some accidental manner.

PUBLIC ADVISED NOT TO GIVE ALMS TO STREET BEGGARS

Committee Says It Investigated 311 Cases in Two Years and Found Not One Worthy.

ST. LOUIS "RIPE FOR THE PICKING"

Instance Cited of One Aged Panhandler Who Has Son in Federal Service and Wife Working.

A campaign against street begging was begun today by the Citizens' Anti-Begging Committee, with the issuance of a statement asking citizens to withhold alms and send beggars to the Bureau for Homeless Men.

The committee, headed by Sidney Maestre, president of the Community Fund, reported that it has investigated more than 300 cases of street begging during the last two years and failed to find one instance in which solicitation was justified.

Habitual beggars have come to look upon St. Louis as "wide open," according to the statement, with the result that there is more begging in St. Louis at present than ever before.

The warning, signed by Maestre and T. A. Hendricks, secretary of the committee, said:

"This statement, issued in justice to the unemployed and as a frank statement to the public of the real situation, is based on thorough analysis of many recent cases of begging, all of which, upon investigation, proved conclusively that begging was not the solution of the individual's problem.

More Begging Than Ever.

"No citizen of St. Louis needs to be told that there is today more begging, panhandling, mooching, fraudulent peddling and exploitation of personal misfortune than ever before on our streets.

"Despite the stories of those who beg and their constant reference to the difficulty of getting good jobs the facts are that the horde of beggars now on our streets represents the same old crowd that begged before the depression and expects to beg when it is over.

"Of 311 cases of street begging examined in St. Louis over the past two years and including cases gathered in the height of the unemployment situation we have not found one instance of justified begging.

"The public is inclined to size up an individual beggar and say, 'This beggar is different.'

"In a recent case a beggar of this type, an aged man, was found to have a son in Government service, to be the owner of a lot worth $1250, to be related to a well-to-do family and to have a wife who was working and able to care for him and to have received $450 a short time before as compensation for an accident.

St. Louis "Wide Open."

"The word has gone out in the begging world that St. Louis is 'wide open' and ripe for the picking. The public should realize that giving alms merely confirms the beggar in his bad habits and encourages others to exploit their personal handicaps.

"Begging is an old profession. Beggars were the first actors. They are as skillful today as they ever were and are exploiting the present situation to the full. We find that the honorably unemployed are not resorting to begging, with some few exceptions, and we warn the public that in giving to askers on the streets they are merely making themselves parties to the breaking of the municipal ordinances against begging.

"Citizens should report beggars to the police or send them to the Bureau for Homeless Men, 200 North Fourteenth street. Women should be sent to 2025 Washington avenue."

34 on Committee.

The Anti-Begging Committee is composed of 34 business men, public officials and representatives of social agencies. Besides the chairman and secretary, members are: Chief of Police Gerk, Prosecuting Attorney Rosecan, Circuit Judge Beck, Police Judges Blaine and Foster, Judge Weinbrenner, Associated City Counselor Senti, Workhouse Superintendent Freeze, Chief Probation Officer Hoffman, Jules R. Field, secretary to the Mayor; Carroll W. Harlan, police attorney; Paul S. Bliss, Community Fund; Prof. Frank J. Bruno, Washington University; the Rev. John J. Butler, St. Vincent de Paul Society; P. SAYS LAWYER PAID HIM TO LIE IN THOMASSON CASE

Chauffeur Who Drove Newly-Weds to Chicago Repudiates Statements in Earlier Deposition.

DECLARES HE TRIED TO WRECK MARRIAGE

Conrad E. Friderich Asserts Stephen C. Rogers Suggested Testimony and He Supplied It.

Conrad E. Friderich, who accompanied Hugh W. Thomasson, elderly St. Louis capitalist, and his 28-year-old bride on their honeymoon trip to Chicago, yesterday made an affidavit in which he repudiated entirely his deposition of last December and charged that he was paid by Stephen C. Rogers, Thomasson's attorney, for attempting to separate the newlyweds.

The December testimony, Friderich stated in the affidavit, was "nothing but a lot of testimony invented by Rogers and me." He said Rogers instructed him to get Mrs. Thomasson away from her husband, and supplied forms of warranty deeds which Friederich hoped to persuade her to sign, transferring Thomasson's property from her name.

Friderich, an admirer of Mrs. Thomasson, declared Thomasson went willingly to Chicago in August and was not bulled or coerced in any way. "The old gentleman was treated with the utmost respect both by his wife and me," he said. "He had the time of his life. He was so happy he played, hop, skip, jump on a filling station lawn."

Statement False, Says Rogers.

Attorney Rogers, who is pressing an annulment action against Mrs. Thomasson despite announcements by the pair of a reconciliation, said today, "Friderich's statement is false. You can't keep an irresponsible man from talking."

Rogers denied he had invented testimony, and declared he had lent Friderich about $250 which he expected to get back, and admitted that he gave Friderich the warranty deeds in the hope that he might be able to persuade Mrs. Thomasson to sign them. He said he was satisfied that Friderich's first story was a true account of his part in the affair.

Friderich's affidavit was taken in the office of Wilfred Jones, Clayton lawyer representing Mrs. Thomasson. "I guess I'm a damn fool for doing this, but I'm going to do it anyhow," he said, talking rapidly and smoking numerous cigarettes as he made his statement.

Says He Was Threatened.

"Rogers threatened to have me charged with kidnaping and conspiracy if I didn't tell everything," he said. "I agreed to work with him and we planned to do everything we could to embarrass Mrs. Thomasson and cause her lawyer, Ed Foristel, to discard her.

"I was to be the tool and Rogers was to assume the financial end. He suggested the testimony he wanted and I supplied it. I interviewed most of the other witnesses and supplied them with what they were to testify to. For my part I was well taken care of."

Friderich described himself as an admirer of Mrs. Thomasson, who "liked to have dates with her." He denied that he accompanied the pair to Waterloo, Ill., when they were married in July, and declared he did not know of the wedding until he telephoned Mrs. Thomasson and she told him.

Hired as Chauffeur.

Thomasson hired him as chauffeur for the trip to Chicago, he said, repudiating his previous statement that Mrs. Thomasson "took Thomasson by the seat of his pants and hoisted him into the automobile." When they returned to St. Louis, Friderich said, Thomasson paid him $100 and told him he would like to employ him again for his next trip.

Friderich said he received money from Rogers on 10 or 12 occasions. "I would rather not tell how much," he said, "but it was more than I could ever earn in salary or fees.

"In December he began to get tight and cut down on my allowance. I asked him for $500 because I was plannnig to get Mrs. Thomasson away from her husband by persuasion or otherwise. He gave me $25."

Discussing his arrest in January when he tried to gain entrance to Mrs. Thomasson's Clayton home, Friderich said he went there planning to kidnap Mrs. Thomasson and had borrowed Rogers' automobile for the purpose. Next morning, he said, Rogers arranged for his release from jail after he signed a transcript of the December deposition.

Man Who Made Millions In Cut-Rate Tickets Dies

Joe Leblang Bought Empty Seats to Unpopular Shows and Retailed Them at 10-Cent Profit.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Joe Leblang, who built a multimillion dollar fortune upon the discovery that the law of supply and demand worked both ways in the theater ticket business, died yesterday.

The father of cut-rate seats, who came from Budapest to Broadway by way of a cigar store and lived to own an entire block front, died at 57 after a winter of ill health.

Years ago, as a tobacconist dabbling in any sideline which promised an extra penny, he pondered the circumstance that people would pay brokers' premiums of 50 cents to $5 for seats to Broadway hits.

If demand sent the price of theater seats up, he reasoned, why should not lack of demand bring it down.

He went around town buying and selling theater passes which producers gave barbers, saloonkeepers and others in return for placing advertising placards in windows. Finally he persuaded the producer of a mildly popular show that it would be better business for him to fill his house at $1.50 a seat than to have a third of the seats filled at $2 a seat.

Joe bought at a bargain the seats which were empty night after night and set himself up in a Broadway basement to sell them cheap, charging a 10-cent commission. Lots of people who couldn't afford $3 seats were satisfied to see a less popular show at a 50 per cent saving.

Gray's Basement—taking its name from the drug store overhead at Forty-third and Broadway—has become one of the sights of the town. Just before theater time nightly it is a swarming mass of shoppers for theater tickets, with a dozen ticket salesmen hawking their wares.

On any night the ticket shopper has his choice of 20 to 40 shows at half price—plus that 10 cents a ticket which earned Leblang his fortune.

Entrenched in the cut-rate business, Joe opened another brokerage office upstairs, where he charged larger premiums for more popular shows, and where he charged fancy premiums for seats to the show. But the cut-rate ticket business made Leblang's reputation and most of his fortune.

But for Leblang's cut-rate succor "Abie's Irish Rose" would have closed in the first few weeks of its run. It was failing, and Joe took over half its seats and put them on sale at his cut-rate agency. The play turned into a hit and ran on Broadway for six years.

FOUR DEFEATED CANDIDATES CONTEST MAPLEWOOD ELECTION

John D. Fels, Who Lost Race for Mayor, and Three Council Aspirants File Notice.

Notice of an election contest by four defeated candidates in the Maplewood municipal election of April 7 was filed with Sheriff Lill today for service on the successful candidates.

Plaintiffs are John D. Fels, who lost the race for Mayor by 78 votes, and Wilfred Jones, Louis M. Ruck and Daniel Hogan, unsuccessful candidates for councilman. Those who won were Charles S. Humphreys, Mayor; Frank L. Martini, Fred E. Heideman and Lee Wilson, councilmen.

Jones said the notice was filed after a petition for a recount had been signed by 800 Maplewood voters. Fels contended in the notice that due to improper counting, he failed to receive 120 votes to which he was entitled.

TWO BUILDINGS NEAR SEWER PROJECT ORDERED VACATED

Owner of Cleaning Shop Refuses to Leave Until Signs of Collapse Appear.

Buildings at 6003 and 6005 Kingsbury avenue were ordered vacated yesterday by Building Commissioner Aegerter, who explained the structures are in danger as a result of work on the River des Peres sewer project at that point.

The first of the buildings, which are just west of the excavation, was already empty and Mrs. Zetta Moore, who lives at 6005A Kingsbury told police she would leave.

Harry Diener, proprietor of the Nu-Way Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6005 Kingsbury, refused to leave. He explained today that he was taking proper safeguards and would leave immediately if any evidence of collapse showed in the building between his shop and the excavation.

The west wall of a two-story building at 5958 Kingsbury avenue, collapsed March 26, causing about $20,000 damage.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Director Woodcock Points With Pride.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTICE in your issue of April 14 a statement by Federal Prohibition Director Woodcock in which he points with pride to what he calls a new high peak in Federal prohibition enforcement in March, with more arrests made and more automobiles seized than in any other similar period since last July.

If this is a sign of successful prohibition enforcement, then the more airplane crashes we have, the safer aviation is.

Director Woodcock points with pride to the fact that since he took office last July he has succeeded in having 19,464 liquor law violators sent to the jails and the Federal prisons, receiving sentences totaling 11,730 years.

As I recall, the promises made by the prohibitionists in their campaign for the adoption of the eighteenth amendment were that this law would empty our jails. It seems now, after 13 years of the noble experiment, that the main purpose of the law, according to Director Woodcock, is to see how many people he can squeeze into the already overcrowded prisons.

The director's March report, as published in the Post-Dispatch, is another illustration of the futility of attempting to enforce prohibition on the American people. GEORGE G. VEST.

Honor to Whom Honor Is Due.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I BELIEVE the opinion of the trustees of Huntleigh Village in regard to restoring the name of Denny for Highway No. 77 is in perfect harmony with that of the majority of older citizens. There is more honor due the Dennys in connection with the road than to Lindbergh, who merely flew over it. Had he made the trail with oxen, it would be a different story. Honor to whom honor is due. I believe Lindbergh would feel the same way about it. H. W. N.

Naivete of the Power Interests.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE naivete of the power interests and their henchmen is one of the very amusing things about them. I refer to the statement of Frank J. Boehm, vice president of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., before the State Public Service Commission, when he declared that the management was in the best position to determine when and where rate reductions were justified.

This simple statement shows plainer than anything else could the power interests' belief that they can do no wrong; that they, and they only, know just how much the public can afford to pay for their service, and how much it will pay. The railroads long ago found out that they, as public utilities and semimonopolies, are constrained to consider public welfare first, and their own second. How long before the Power Trust will learn their lesson?

EDWIN ASHLEY LAMKE.

Spain Faces Disillusion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SPAIN has my sympathy in this crisis. King Alfonso is lucky to be out of that thankless job. But Spain has sustained a very serious loss. Alfonso was the best King that Spain has ever had. He was an intelligent and enlightened man of the world with wide experience, fully acquainted with modern industrial development and up-to-date in every respect. Moreover, he was intensely patriotic and devoted to the best interests and welfare of his country. I am quite sure that Spain will not obtain anywhere near as good, as honest and as sincere a ruler by any process of election. I predict that after a few turbulent years, Spain will have a dictator like Portugal or the South American Republics.

The vote that elected the Republicans was a very ignorant vote nurtured by illusions. The poor people have dreamed of a republic as an ideal state of society in which they will be entirely free and have plenty of jobs and prosperity. They will soon learn how mistaken they were. If they had been as fully acquainted with republics as we are and as the people who have lived under them in South America, they would not have been so enthusiastic with their votes and not so ready to drop the bone they had to grasp its shadow in the water.

Prayer for Beautiful Federal Building.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTE that there is to be a new design for the Federal Building on the Plaza. May we venture to hope, or even to pray, that we will be spared the infliction of a structure of the packing case model, perhaps appropriate for a warehouse or jail, but certain to be out of place on the Plaza.

We who will have to live with the Federal Building are vitally interested in having a structure which will not only not outrage our esthetic life, but should have one that will be of inspiring beauty for all the years of its endurance.

An ugly building, be it a bridge or a public edifice, is but little short of a criminal offense in these days of the wide diffusion of artistic sense. But, to paraphrase, Oh, Architecture! how many crimes are committed in thy name!

E. R. PAILLOU.

MR. HOOVER AND NICARAGUA.

There can no longer be any doubt that Mr. Hoover has turned his back upon the former policy of the United States with respect to protection of our nationals and their property in the Caribbean Republics.

After a conference with the President following the killing of eight of our civilians and one of our marines by rebels at Puerto Cabezas, Secretary of State Stimson yesterday gave notice to our nationals in Nicaragua that the American Government cannot undertake general protection of its citizens in that country. The notification, sent through the legation at Managua and the consulate at Bluefields, recommends that "all Americans who do not feel secure under the protection afforded them by the Nicaraguan Government through the Nicaraguan National Guard withdraw from the country, or at least to the coast towns, where they can be protected or evacuated in case of necessity." Those who remain, the official notice said, "do so at their own risk and must not expect American forces to be sent inland to their aid."

In a special message on Jan. 10, 1927, President Coolidge told Congress:

> The United States cannot fail * * * to view with deep concern any serious threat to stability and constitutional government in Nicaragua tending toward anarchy and jeopardizing American interests. * * * It has always been and remains the policy of the United States in such circumstances to take steps that may be necessary for the preservation and protection of the lives, the property and the interests of its citizens and of this Government itself.

In an address before the United Press in New York City on the following April 25, President Coolidge said:

> The person and property of a citizen are a part of the general domain of the nation, even when abroad. * * * There is a distinct and binding obligation on the part of self-respecting governments to afford protection to the persons and property of their citizens, wherever they may be. * * * These rights go with the citizen. Wherever he goes, these duties of our Government must follow him.

Mr. Coolidge proved himself a poor student of international law in thus defining the national domain, but his policy nevertheless continued an American tradition which had prevailed almost without question through the regimes of Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and Harding. Like many other things, it fell into disfavor after the World War. The doctrine of self-determination which Mr. Wilson had let loose upon the winds, a contradiction of his own occupation of Haiti, roused the countries of the Caribbean region to a new conception of their relation to the United States. In Mexico, in Haiti and in Nicaragua, resistance to our imperialism stiffened to a point which at last brings all such adventures into confusion. The turning point upon our side came when Mr. Morrow went to Mexico. He found the country paralyzed by fear of the United States. In the shadow of what they believed to be our inevitable conquest, 15,000,000 people were deprived of any great usefulness either to themselves or to us. Mr. Morrow, who saw Mexico as a great potential market for the United States, rather than as a place for treasure-hunting, promptly made friends of those who, in Senator Borah's picturesque phrase, were already neighbors.

It was this new thing in the New World that Mr. Hoover encountered when he entered the White House. Where Mr. Hughes had veritably turned himself inside out before the Pan-American Congress at Havana two years before, Mr. Hoover displayed at the outset a disposition to turn his back upon a policy that had become impracticable. His first move was to dispatch a commission to Haiti. Its mission was to ascertain upon what terms we could best withdraw our armed forces. The Haitians in 16 years had proved themselves capable of dying before they would be conquered. Mr. Hoover next announced that our marines would be withdrawn from Nicaragua by January 1, 1933. Unfortunately, the revolt against our occupation flared up before we could make this promise good.

There is, of course, violent dissent from the action which the President has taken through the State Department. Nevertheless, he is, in our opinion, right. To strengthen the sovereignty of the Caribbean states and thus make them capable of protecting our nationals is a sounder policy. It is the policy which Mr. Morrow instituted in Mexico. If we stick to it we can make all the Caribbean states responsible, and we can in time make the lives and property of our nationals safe throughout the Caribbean region. We can never do so by attempting to be our own police. The marines themselves are the source of the present attack upon our nationals in Nicaragua. To augment our forces is only to deal with effects where Mr. Hoover proposes to remove the cause.

MAYOR RUTH AND NATURAL GAS.

Mayor Ruth wants to make it possible for the residents of University City to burn natural gas in their homes. He is willing to wait a reasonable length of time for the St. Louis County Gas Co. to furnish it, but in default of its action the Mayor proposes to have the city assume the job. That, we take to be not a threat but a promise. St. Louis is in the same position, except that its need for natural gas, considering the greater intensity of the smoke evil, is far more pressing. The city utility, like the county utility, has been considering the question for a long time, but so far as the public is advised, cheap natural gas is as far away as ever.

In the meantime, Chicago and many Northern cities, far removed from the Louisiana and Texas gas fields, are preparing for its advent. What an irony it is that the pipes for this Northern gas supply will detour around St. Louis, which needs a clean fuel as badly as any other city in the country. The Laclede Gas Light Co.'s perpetual franchise does not provide for the exclusive right to furnish gas, but the fact that it owns a great distributing system makes it the logical source of a natural gas supply. With a 100-year supply of natural gas in the South and Southwest ready for the tapping, what good reason, commercial or otherwise, exists to excuse the lack of enterprise the Laclede company is showing?

As the chief executive of a smaller city, Mayor Ruth has a better opportunity than St. Louis to solve the natural gas problem, either by inducing the county utility to supply it or by causing the city to build its own distributing system. University City is an active and progressive community. Its citizenship is more closely welded and it has a marked spirit of community pride. We wish Mayor Ruth good fortune. If he succeeds in obtaining cheap natural gas, it will form a persuasive object lesson for St. Louis. Perhaps it would shake our utility and our city officials out of their lethargy on this subject.

END OF THE ELECTRICAL CONSPIRACY.

As a result of inquiry begun by the Post-Dispatch and prosecuted by Attorney-General Shartel, the electrical conspiracy which increased the price of electrical construction in St. Louis as much as 50 per cent has been broken up.

By the consent decree which was approved today by the Missouri Supreme Court, four St. Louis electrical trades organizations are ousted from the State for violation of the anti-trust laws. They are the Electrical Employers' Association, composed of a majority of electrical contractors in St. Louis; the Electrical Approval Bureau, a board of inspectors whose duty it is to see that electrical installation work is done according to plans and specifications and that plans and specifications are ample; the Electrical Listing Bureau, an organization of calculators devised to assist contractors in estimating quantities of materials and figuring contract costs; and the Electrical Protective Association, to which contractors paid $2.80 for each union employe in payment of life and annuity insurance furnished to all union men, the contractor and his non-union employes.

Judgment against the Electrical Listing Bureau is suspended upon the condition that it will abandon practices contrary to the anti-trust laws. The Listing Bureau is allowed time to file acceptance of the conditions, and the court reserves the right to lift suspension and reinstate the ouster if it fails to comply with the law. Meanwhile, by agreement between Attorney-General Shartel and Circuit Attorney Miller, criminal indictments against Orville E. Jennings and Chester Chapline, dominant figures in the formation and control of the four organizations, are to be dismissed now that ouster has been filed by the court.

Thus ends an intolerable injustice, one which made building costs in St. Louis in many instances prohibitive.

WHEN YOUNG MINDS ARE OLD.

The St. Louis Christian Endeavor Union has placed itself in a decidedly unfavorable position by the nature of its refusal to be connected with the Sherwood Eddy meeting for young people tomorrow afternoon in the Second Baptist Church. Dr. Eddy's espousal of Russian recognition was cited by the union as its chief objection. In taking this stand the union apparently overlooked everything else in the career of Dr. Eddy, who recently retired from the Y. M. C. A. after 40 years of world-wide service to devote himself to working for economic and political justice and world peace.

In striking contrast to the Christian Endeavor Union stand some score of other young people's organizations, which are supporting the meeting, including Jewish, Unitarian, Evangelical, Methodist, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Baptist and several non-denominational groups. It is to the credit of the Presbyterian Young People's League, which makes up a large part of the Christian Endeavor Union, that it refused to follow the parent organization's lead, but instead is one of the chief supporters of the visit of this veteran fighter for right relations between man and man.

FIRST BASE AND THE BROWNS.

Our Browns made Thursday's game with the Detroit Tigers a memorable afternoon. Through 12 poignant innings the contest was one of those flashing duels in which the genuine fan experiences all the emotions of death and the resurrection. Such drama, however, is not infrequently enacted. But on Thursday the Browns as a team, with 27 assists, came within one of tying the historic performance of the Pittsburg Pirates, which has decorated the books for 20 years, and on Thursday Mr. Burns of the Browns eclipsed everything in the annals of first base by participating in 26 executions—21 putouts and five assists.

Mr. Burns did something more than create a new high for first base activities. He carried on the great tradition. Far back in the golden age, when Pericles was Mayor of St. Louis, the Browns in their pristine luster had a wealth of distinction, to be sure, but their princely leader, Comiskey, directed their destiny from first base. The folklore of the game relates, too, that Comiskey embellished first base with hitherto undreamed-of possibilities — transformed the position from a static receivership into dynamic dimensions.

The glory passed, and the evil days came, and the hearts of the faithful were heavy, when, lo! the Browns reappeared in a flowering renaissance by reason, largely, of Sisler's genius at first base. The years saw Sisler fade and vanish, and the eminence of the Browns subsided and disappeared. Why? Because the master's touch has been wanting at first base? Well, if that is what the Browns have been waiting for, they seem to have found the answer to the riddle in Mr. Burns.

WHERE JEFFERSON MADE HIS PLOW.

There are so many things of absorbing interest at Monticello, the mountain top home of Jefferson, that the casual visitor is apt to overlook the absence of the shops in which the sinewy Virginian spent so much of his time. In his day these one-story buildings were an exceedingly important part of the Jefferson estate. In the workshop he invented the swivel chair and the double swinging door. In the smithy he made his improvements on the plow. From the tailor shop came the first long trousers. Up and down the whole row he conducted classes for his servants in cabinet making, bricklaying, masonry and smith work. After Jefferson's death the rude buildings fell into disrepair and finally succumbed to the ravages of time. Now Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has stolen a march on Virginia's two Democratic Senators by proposing that the shops be rebuilt. It is a work which would not cost much and would serve to present a fuller picture of the sandy-haired farmer who lived there. The desk on which he wrote papers of state is no more interesting than the forge in which he hammered red-hot iron.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

Second Year of the Drouth

Shortage of ground water and of capital are results of 1930 drouth remaining to harass farmers; 1931 crops in Middle West depend on 12 inches of rain, more than annual average, in next 60 days; weather maps for last year show long series of conditions adverse to precipitation; systematic meteorological study is needed.

J. Russell Smith, Professor of Economic Geography, Columbia University, in the New Republic.

TWO classes of dangers face the farmers of many states for the season of 1931—the hangover dangers and the future dangers.

First, the hangover dangers—deficiency of ground water and shortage of working capital. Water moves through the earth very slowly. Therefore surprising quantities of it are ordinarily in the ground beneath every farm. This ground water, replenished largely by winter rains, is a very important source of moisture for the summer crops in the Eastern and Southeastern United States. Ground water feeds springs and wells, and also rises by capillarity to the point where plants can reach it. Therefore, the drouth of last year threatens to hit the farmer again because the summer crops are dependent on the winter rain, which did not fall abundantly this year.

Last year's drouth has already hit the farmer in many ways, crippling any chance for progress this year. His hay field is without grass. His wheat is in bad order. His haymows are emptier than ever before at this time of the year; his flocks and herds are reduced. His mortgages are bigger. His notes at the bank are more pressing; his credit is lower, to say nothing of low prices caused by the slump.

The future dangers have two forms. First, will the drouth continue as it is now? And second, if rains increase, can they suffice to bring crops? Mr. Kincer, agricultural meteorologist, says that the Middle West needs 12 inches of rain in the next two months to restore things to normal. The average precipitation, which has not been falling for 14 months, is less than two-thirds of this 12 inches. Thousands share with me the fear that even normal rain will leave crops below the average. If average amounts of rainfall should be kind enough to distribute themselves perfectly through the growing season, we shall come through in fair order. But rains are independent and still absent.

* * *

No wonder that man prays for rain. I do not refer to the Zuni Indians in the deserts of Arizona or the tribes on the edges of the Sahara. I refer to the people of New Jersey, Virginia, Dakota. They pray for rain, too; they pray in groups and in public places. It is all they can do, for was it not said truly, long ago, that "the wind bloweth where it listeth"? The rain is not only beyond our control, it is as yet beyond our understanding.

Why did it not rain? We can probably say with truth that deforestation has reduced by a small amount the rainfall of the Ohio Valley; that it has increased by an enormous amount the speed of run-off and the destructiveness of floods; that it has been a great factor in the continuing erosion of fields which has already destroyed in our country an area of good farm land equal to that under cultivation in Japan. But we cannot say that deforestation or erosion made any substantial part of the great drouth of 1930-31. The meteorologists say gravely that something has disturbed the general circulation of the earth's atmosphere so far as it applies to the Southeast.

Those who read that interesting sheet, the daily weather map, know that ordinarily the United States has a constant procession of weather units moving across it. An area of high barometric pressure carrying with it clear, rainless air, is followed by an area of low barometric pressure bringing clouds and rain. The surface winds blow into the low area from all directions. They rise, drop their moisture and go outward at high levels. The weather man calls this a cyclone. It covers a hundred thousand square miles or so. The cyclone brings us our all-day rains. These cyclonic areas of rain move across the country, and are the chief rainmakers of America.

* * *

The weather of 1930 and of 1931 to the present time has been a perfectly marvelous succession of highs that held to seashore locations, hung there a long time, and kept the lows from getting water. I have scanned the daily weather maps for the whole of the past 12 months. I have done this for a quarter of a century. It has been amazing to see how, recently, a high area would occupy the Southeastern United States whenever a low area tried to bring rain. The lows have traveled up the Atlantic coast, but have drifted out to sea far enough to bring only clouds or sprinkles to the land. Meanwhile, the high with its drouth hung over the land an amazing proportion of time each month. It still does. We have no reason to hope to be able to change this, but if we knew when such disturbances of the routine were coming, many things could be done to mitigate the calamity.

How ardently I wish that the funds used to build and operate a single battleship for its allotted time could be devoted to a systematic study of the atmosphere so that we might find out what causes the major weather changes. This meteorological study would be a world-wide enterprise, with stations on Antarctic ice, the Greenland ice cap, Tibet, the Pamirs, western China and many other odd corners. Airplanes and balloons would explore the upper air, and the magnetic and other activities of the sun and planets would come in for close scrutiny.

Though the scientific world may sometimes confess itself baffled, yet it still has faith—a faith based on the conviction that no fundamentally new cause has suddenly begun to work in this universe. But that the present drouth is unusual and unprecedented every scientist will admit, for no drouth of similar proportions or duration has ever occurred in this country since the white man first settled it. There is, however, some little comfort to be found in the realization that many former drouths have been followed by a long period of heavy rains and that when the present drouth has ended, there is every probability that a comparable one will not again occur for many years.

HISTORY'S PENDULUM WILL SWING.

From the Detroit News.

THERE should be a dandy opening some 25 or 30 years hence for an enterprising group of young writers to go to work rebunking history.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, April 18.

IT COSTS an average of $100 to bring a Congressman to Washington, $10,000 yearly to pay him, another $100 to send him home, and—if he dies in service—from $1200 to $1500 to bury him properly.

The Government's open-handedness toward its employes on Capitol Hill does not stop with providing the bare essentials outlined above. Congressmen get their office rent free (they're nice offices, too) and their postal bills paid. Clerical help is furnished gratis, stationery is provided and "miscellaneous needs" are attended to at an annual cost of $5000 a legislator. The statesmen may even obtain haircuts and shaves in the Capitol barber shop for much less than laymen usually pay.

* * *

A LITTLE co-operation on the part of the beneficiaries can extend the generosity to greater lengths. For instance, a Congressman is allowed $5000 annually for clerical help. No law prevents his wife, daughter, son or other kin from being placed on the congressional payroll as his secretary or assistant secretary. Sometimes these relatives actually work in the office, but often an assistant outside the family performs their duties for less remuneration.

Nor will there likely ever be a law against this practice, which Representative Stone of Oklahoma has harshly termed "nepotism." Mr. Stone's recent introduction of a bill forbidding the employment of relatives by legislators only resulted in his being severely snubbed by his colleagues, who acted as though he had turned the congressional bootlegger over to justice. At that, one can hardly blame them. When you start legislating against customs of that kind, it makes them look pretty bad.

* * *

ANOTHER example of combined thrift and ingenuity, which is not so well received, however, is that shown by two Southern Senators who make their roomy offices do for living quarters as well. It is generally felt that this is carrying economy to a point where it ceases to be a virtue. When one of these two enterprising gentlemen rose during debate on a quasi-moral question and delivered a eulogy on the American home, a fierce whisper was audible in the gallery: "If he thinks the home is so wonderful, why don't he get himself one?"

A word of explanation should be made regarding the cost of congressional funerals. It is customary for the presiding officer in whichever house of Congress the deceased was a member to appoint several delegates to attend the funeral. The place of interment may be distant from Washington, and the expense of transporting the delegates correspondingly great. However, the most extreme circumstances scarcely account for the cost reaching as high as $7000 as it has once, at least, during the past 10 years. For explanation, one might question the legislator who recently hinted to Congress concerning certain "barbaric customs" attendant upon these obsequies.

A Bard in Erin

CROSSROADS IN IRELAND. By Padriac Colum. (The Macmillan Co., New York. $3.50.)

A TOUR of Ireland with a bard who likes to sing of the past and the present in a most engaging manner is this companion work of the author's "The Road Around Ireland," published several years ago. He sings in prose, however, though occasionally he breaks forth into verse, sometimes original, sometimes a song that has been handed down through the years. Yet his prose is delightful, as the crossroads he visits are delightful.

Colum travels through the present-day Ireland, which he sees with the eyes and attitude of one who loves his country not because he is a patriot, but because he loves beauty. And since so much of that beauty lies in the merging of the past and present of Ireland, there is much of the old Ireland, of the tradition that has lived on in folklore and in ballad. The transition is so natural that the reader is at first unaware there has been a transition—from present to past, from past to present.

It is in Kilkenny, at the cathedral of Saint Canice, where lie the Ormonds, one time lords of Kilkenny, with their effigies in armor above them.

"One Earl has his feet resting on a strange little beast. It is an otter. The bite of the beast brought about this Ormond's death. He is the ninth Earl, James Butler, and the date given for him is 1546.

"I learn that he was not in his own territory when he met his death. He must have speared many otters on the banks of his own river, the Nore. . . . A townsman who has been looking at the little beast under James Butler's feet tells me of an encounter with an otter hereabouts. He had been wanting an otter waistcoat for some time. So when he saw one in a garden or yard—the river being flooded the beast had come in there—he determined to seize him. He caught him by the tail. Now if you ever do this, you msut hold the otter in such a way that he cannot double back and bite you—it must be a ticklish performance. Well, this townsman, holding the otter by the tail, swung him round and round, keeping those teeth away from him. He felt his arms were being pulled out of him before he was able to strike the beast against something. He got the otter killed, and now he wears the skin for a waistcoat."

Whereupon he and the otter-waistcoated man go through the town, and Colum carries one through it and in a most natural manner back to the medieval days and the early history and anecdotes of the district. In such a manner he tells of the northern countries, of the Orangemen and the country side, and the traditions; of the Free State, Dublin, Maynooth where priests are trained, and of the River Shannon. A procession of interesting personalities, some dead well-night a thousand years and some characteristic of the present Ireland, passes before the reader.

Colum's prose style is simple, and frequently beautiful. There are also some enlightening illustrations, at the hands of capable artists.

THE ORGEON TRAIL AND SOME OF ITS BLAZERS. By Maude E. Rucker. (Walter Neale, New York. $2.50.)

Mrs. Rucker has an interest more than literary in telling the tale of the Oregon Trail, because her grandfather, Lisbon Applegate, and her three great-uncles, Lindsay, Charles and Jesse Applegate, were some of its blazers, and it is in memory of these that her history has been compiled. It is more of a compilation than a composition, embodying a great deal of source material which supplements with its authenticity the sincerity of her work.

The making of the great Northwest was indeed a glamorous and romantic enterprise in its own right, needing none of the embellishment which has too often been employed by other writers, even to the extnt of introducing frankly fictitious matter. The interest and value of the present work consists in the presentation, largely in the language and documents of the pioneers themselves, the tense, graphic story of the great migration of 1843, when the Applegates and others of their rugged mold "dared the perils of unprofaned stupendous mountains; the terrors of the purgatorial desert; battle and death at the hands of savages; flood, famine, wild beasts and innumerable other risks" to open up a region that they dreamed of as a land of plenty. For them it proved at first a land of privation and hardship, but they conquered the wilderness and in fullness of years became colonizers, landowners and statesmen, making possible homes of plenty for the many who came after them.

The documentation includes Joseph Schafer's biography of Jesse Applegate, writings of Jesse Applegate, including his account of a day with the cow column, his recollections and letters, Herrick's account of Jesse Applegate and the reminiscences of Lindsay Applegate. It is in every way a worthy addition to the history of a heroic era.

OUTLINES PLAN FOR CITY LIGHT PLANT IN ST. CHARLES

Mayor O'Neal on Assuming Office Suggests That Bonds for Purpose Be Voted Next Year.

Upon assuming office as Mayor of St. Charles last night, Wayne S. O'Neal delivered an address outlining a program for the construction and operation of a municipally-owned electric light plant.

"There is a conviction on the part of many citizens of St. Charles," he said, "that the city should own and operate its electric light plant. The council committee on electric lights will be charged with the responsibility of formulating a definite plan to be paid for through a bond issue."

The new Mayor said today he hoped the bond issue election could be held next year at the same time as the regular city election.

Under the retiring administration headed by Mayor Frank H. May, who was not a candidate for re-election, St. Charles already has taken steps toward municipal ownership. The electric light committee of the Council made an investigation and recommended that the city build its own light plant to be ready for operation in 1933 when the franchise held by the Union Electric Light & Power Co. will expire. It estimated that such a plant would cost between $200,000 and $400,000, and suggested it be operated in connection with the waterworks now owned by the city.

A Board of Public Works was recently created by the City Council to have charge of the waterworks and such other public utilities as the city may acquire.

BULGARIAN CABINST CRISIS

Economic Difficulties Expected to Cause Ministry to Resign.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Gilbert K. Chesterton, noted English essayist, in sailing home to England on the Majestic yesterday, said:

REBEL GARRISONS ON TWO AZORES ISLANDS SURRENDER

Sao Jorge and Graciosa in Hands of Troops From Portuguese Warships.

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, Portugtal April 18.—An official communique published today said that the Government had effected surrender of two rebel garrisons in the Azores. The Islands of Sao Jorge and Graciosa are now in the hands of troops from the cruiser Carvalho Araujo and the destroyer Damao, the communique said, and the ringleaders of the rebellion there are under arrest.

An ultimatum has been sent to the rebels on the Island of Terceira that if they do not surrender immediately the island will be bombarded. After sending the ultimatum the Calvalho Arujo joined the cruiser Vasco da Gama and moved to Horta, where preparations were made for an attack.

The Island of Sao Miguel, furthermost east of the archipelago, also is in the hands of the rebels. The insurrection broke out a fortnight ago in Funchal, Madeira, which is still in control of a rebel junta, and spread to the Azores.

SENTENCED FOR SLANDERING LATE DR. GUSTAV STRESEMANN

German Socialist Leader and Editor Charged He Got $250,000 for "Putting Over" Young Plan.

By the Associated Press.

KREFELD, Germany, April 18.—Dr. Diehl, National Socialist leader, and a newspaper editor named Thomassen were sentenced yesterday to four months' imprisonment each for wrongfully charging that the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann, Foreign Minister, received $250,000 for "putting across" the Young plan. The suit was pressed by Stresemann's widow on the basis of a law against defamation of the dead. She requested her husband's name be cleared of the charges made during last year's election campaign.

The defendants appeared in court, giving the Fascist salute, for which they were rebuked by the judge. It was established that Diehl had uttered slanderous allegations against the late Foreign Minister, but had done nothing to see that his name was cleared of the charges.

6.5 PCT. GAIN IN 1930 FOR BIG CORPORATIONS

Accountant Firm Compares Earnings With 1921 When Profit Was 1.39.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, April 18.—Despite 1930's unemployment, depression and failures, the country's leading industrial corporations made better than 6 per cent profit on their capital investment, Ernst & Ernst, nation-wide firm of accountants, disclosed today.

The accountants showed that compared to depressions of previous decades, some of 1930's performances were astonishingly successful.

The analysis covered 407 representative corporations in 20 widely diversified branches of industry. It showed their 1930 average profits on capital investment were 6.49 per cent as compared with 1.39 per cent in the depression year of 1921.

On approximately the same basis of comparison these corporations had profits of 11.35 per cent in the bonanza year of 1929.

Additional figures from 139 of these corporations showed that inventories which were 41 per cent of net plant investment in 1921, were held down to 33 per cent in 1930; sales were 4.14 times inventories in 1921 as compared to 5.21 times in 1930; net profits on sales were less than half of one per cent in 1921 compared to 5.7 per cent in 1930.

Ernst & Ernst pointed out that the 5.7 per cent profits on sales in the "bad year of 1930" were better than the 5.02 per cent rate of profit in the so-called "good year of 1920."

Commenting on the 1930 status of inventories, sales and profits, Ernst & Ernst said "All of these are favorable factors and serve to suggest that management of the larger companies has improved materially in the last 10 years. The study also raises doubts as to whether plants of the larger corporations are as much over-expanded as is generally assumed."

AMERICAN BOND & MORTGAGE INVESTIGATED BY U. S. AGENTS

Justice Department Says Complaints as to Prices of Securities Have Been Received.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The Justice Department announced today that Federal agents had been inquiring into the affairs of the American Bond and Mortgage Co. Officials said the inquiry had not yet developed into a "definite general investigation" of the company.

For about a year, it was said, complaints have been coming to the department, a majority of them centering about the prices of securities sold by the company in relation to their actual worth. It was said officially that many of these have been followed up and that the inquiries have led into Boston, New York and other cities.

Word also came from the department that postoffice inspectors have been making inquiry to determine whether the laws relating to the use of the mails have been violated.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Harold A. Moore, vice president of the American Bond and Mortgage Co., said today he had known since June of a Department of Justice inquiry into affairs of the company, but that no demands had been made for records. He asserted the inquiry was due to activity of an Eastern group seeking control of the company. This group, he said, wrote to the Justice Department last June asking for an investigation.

Daily Article by Calvin Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, MASS. April 18.

A member of Congress has suggested the possibility of going outside the membership of the House in electing a Speaker. Probably such action would be legal. Knowing the resourcefulness of Representatives it would be hazardous to say such action has not been before considered. If so, it was rejected.

Everyone with any information on national political affairs knows that there are many men in the House qualified to discharge the great office of Speaker. No one without actual experience on the floor and intimate knowledge of the traditions of procedure could hope for success in the chair. Besides the Speaker has always exercised legislative functions in connection with his office. That seems necessary if he is to have any power beyond that of a moderator. Custom and usage are so important in guiding human action that much would be lost and little could be gained if a Speaker were not also a Representative. But if the House should look with any favor on this suggestion there are two men excellently qualified and available. One is the former Speaker Frederick H. Gillett and the other is Judge Finis J. Garrett, who was floor leader of the Democratic Party before he went on the bench.

JERITZA'S DEFAMATION SUIT OPENS BEFORE VIENNA CROWD

Singer Charges She Is Heroine of Novel; Public Excluded When "Love Life" Is Read.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 18. — The socially prominent of Vienna crowded in court yesterday to hear the opening of a case, in which the prima donna, Maria Jeritza and her husband, Baron Leopold Popper, are suing Roderich Mueller Guttenbrund, author of the novel, "Riffraff." They charge the novel attempts to describe phases of their life and by distorting facts defames their characters.

The audience heard Judge Powalatz read pasages from the book. The public, however, was excluded when he read of "The Love Life," as Neue Freie Presse calls it, of the singer Grete Levita, heroine of the story, behind which name Mme. Jeritza suspects her own identity is concealed.

Other plaintiffs are former Capt. Paul Leuftner, the baron's secretary, and Leuftner's wife. With Guttenbrunn as defendant are Robert Schenk, the Baron's cousin, Miss Grete Leihs Lainburg, formerly Jeritza's private secretary, and Olga Bauer Pilecka, a publisher.

All the plaintiffs see themselves as occupying places in the novel. Guttenbrund denies he had any special persons in mind while writing the book. Schenk repudiates the charge that he assisted the author by showing him contents of his own unpublished book entitled "Baron Poldi," nickname for Leopold.

NEW VICEROY TO WORK FOR INDIAN DOMINION STATUS

Earl Willingdon, Sworn In, Appeals to Princes and People to Help Him.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, India, April 18.—Earl Willingdon, new Viceroy to India, who was sworn into office today, has pledged himself to work for a free India with full dominion status in the British Empire. Replying to Bombay's greetings, he appealed to the Princes and people to help him "lead India rapidly toward the goal of responsible government and a position of absolutely equal partnership with other dominions under the British crown."

"I shall endeavor," he said, "to carry on the great work initiated by Lord Irwin, whose sympathy, patience, courage and earnestness of purpose secured him the abiding affection, regard and admiration of all classes."

India welcomed Willingdon back with cordiality and hospitality, remembering that he had been Governor of Bombay and Madras for 11 years until he left six years ago to be Governor-General of Canada.

Lord Irwin received an impressive farewell as he sailed for London. Among those who saw him off was Mahatma Gandhi. "I shall see you in London at the second round table conference," were the parting words of Lord Irwin to the Nationalist leader. Gandhi smiled as he answered: "It is in God's hands."

300 AT TRYOUT FOR MUNY OPERA CHORUS

Tests Will Be Continued Today and Monday at American Theater.

Professional rapidity characterized the opening try-out yesterday of applicants for places in the 1931 Municipal Opera chorus. Surprisingly few minutes were required for each group of 30 to 40 girls to file from the crowded parquet to the stage of the American Theater, wait for a tremulous moment, and, one by one, run a scale or two, show a ballet or tap step, and receive a sympathetic nod of dismissal or the sought-for "Come back Sunday."

Yesterday's tryouts, and today's, for the men, are by no means final. More girls are sought for audition at 10 a. m. Monday and more men at 2 p. m. Monday. The Municipal Opera is anxious to have, so far as possible, a St. Louis chorus. But the chorus must be able to sing.

The 300 applicants examined yesterday were graded but not finally accepted by Ballet Master Brandeaux, Casting Director Simmons and Music Director Bamboschek. Many were turned away, several were classified as possibilities, many as first-class material, and perhaps half a dozen as exceptionally good.

Even the training and experience of some of last year's chorus, however, was not sufficient to carry them through the try-out. "Frankly," remarked Brandeaux, "I never could go through with what these kids are doing. I'd be scared to death."

"Is that a nerve test!" exclaimed a diminutive entertainer from a St. Louis night club. "My voice sounded as if the phonograph were running down. And, believe it or not, I'm earning a living by singing."

It was doubly tough for those who tried to sing in a false register or were not sure beforehand what dance steps they wanted to show. Second sopranos who didn't try a first soprano's scale, and proficient tappers who tapped and abstained from the toe dance, got along beautifully. Even false starts did not exhaust the patience of the opera staff, and every sign of promise met with prompt encouragement.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK.

PURELY personal piffle: I have never seen Niagara Falls or met a girl named Madge. A gentleman in Red Wing, Minn., insists I was in prison with him at San Quentin. And that I owe him $12. No one steps so gracefully as Jack Dempsey. I detest costume plays.

I had an uncle who wore a lavender waistcoat and whom everybody called "Colonel." He was a carriage painter. My grandmother called anything she didn't know by name a "thingummy." Of all the plays I saw in my youth the one I remember best is Hanlon's "Superba." I still like to scrape cake icing off the platter.

I feel tremendously sorry for Mayor Walker. I went to a Christmas matinee at the Folies Bergere three years ago with my 74-year-old mother-in-law. I never face an issue. The gayest, most intertsting night club ever visited was Bustanoby's uptown place.

I have never known scandal to be repeated truthfully. There are invariably interpolations. In school boys used to pull a slate pencil through their teeth to see me pop out in a sweat. The only talkie I ever cared to see twice is "Trader Horn." I'm completely awed by men with Van Dykes.

For years I could read any patent medicine ad. and have all the symptoms. In Gallipolis, O., most everybody addresses me by the nickname "Dunk." I never passed through Cheyenne, Wyo., without expecting to see a cowboy gallop through the streets shooting from both hips. If I enjoy a show I like to see it three or four times.

My favorite "hard boiled" city block is Forty-seventh street between Broadway and Sixth avenue. The "Broadwayest" crowd is at the Palace Sunday nights. No state will amaze a stranger like Texas. I enjoy W. C. Fields clowning more than his juggling. I see spots for an hour after a flashlight.

Every time I go to an Italian table d'hote I swear never to go again. My first view of the metropolis was from a bus top, taken at the Pennsylvania station. It thrills me more today than then. My ambition in those days was to have a charge account at Altman's, sign luncheon checks at the Claridge and be taken for a city chap.

THE first literary tea I ever attended was at Dana Burnet's. And Charles Hanson Towne read a poem and told a story about Mrs. Fiske. I fell down the steps leaving and tore a knee out of my Sunday pants. The man I wanted to see more than any other was Clyde Fitch. But I never did. I've always wanted to write a mystery story with the entire action in a fog on the London Strand.

I CAN have as much fun prowling around Grand Central as a kid at a circus. Recognition by ticket takers and head-waiters gives me a pleasant glow. I have a waving acquaintance with a dozen policemen on Broadway and Fifth avenue. One calls me "Art." Another "Slick."

EVERY time I bathed the Sealyham he got away and shakes himself in the best room. I love a walk through dead leaves. And I like that cold, clammy smell of Paris at dawn. The most romantic city to me in America is New Orleans. Once a week I have a dessert of cold custard and hot chocolate cake. I drink coffee if it is served but never ask for it. B. A. Rolfe's orchestra selections are dandy on the radio.

MY chauffeur looks like the Rev. Mr. Beavin, our Episcopal rector back home. And the butler could double for Williams of Williams and Walker. I once lived in the same hotel with Lillian Russell, Lawrence D'Orsay, Edna Ferber, George S. Kaufman, Arthur Somers Roche, Anna Fitziu and Ethel Clayton lived. When my wife calls me Odd, it means I am in for it. I loathe snake hip dancing. I used to pull wings off flies when a boy.

BEN ALI HAGGIN is my idea of a man-about-town. Julian Johnson took me to Delmonico's the first time. We lunched with Meredith Nicholson. Whenever I hear a quartette I imagine I'm the tenor. I never remember numbers.

I DO not like a tune until I hear it five or six times. One of the most picturesque elderly gentlemen in New York to my notion is Whitney Warren, the architect. When "March of the Toys" is radiocast and no one is looking I march up and down the room. Anytime I awaken in the night I begin a mental search for something to worry about. Do you care for sentences ending with the preposition? Or maybe you'd like to wrestle?

SAYS GERMANY NEEDS FOREIGN CAPITAL TO REVIVE INDUSTRY

Dean of School of Business at College of City of New York Addresses Political Academy.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—Foreign capital is necessary for the revival of German industry, in the opinion of Dr. George W. Edwards, dean of the School of Business and Civic Administration, College of the City of New York.

Dean Edwards, speaking yesterday at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, said "There has been a marked curtailment of the movement of long-term capital from the United States to Germany. There has also been a similar diminution of long-term financing in the other capital exporting countries. A renewal of this flow of capital is essential for the revival of German industry, due to the inadequate financial resources of Germany itself."

Dr. James W. Angell of Columbia University said Germany was working under a "severe international financial strain," which would not be ended by the ending of the current business depression.

A two-year-old chestnut filly of the Holtkamp Farm, Hillsboro, Mo., was sold for $800 to George Lee of Mexico, Mo. The sale will continue with sessions this afternoon and tonight. About 250 horses were offered for sale at the auction this year.

EXPERTS DISCOVER 'DESERTS' IN OCEAN

One Section So Deficient in Oxygen Fish Could Probably Not Live in It.

By the Associated Press.

LA JOLLA, Cal.—There are "deserts" in the waters of the Pacific ocean as truly as there are deserts on land.

Existence of the watery wastes is brought to light in recent investigations by Dr. E. G. Moberg of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography and members of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Already the geographical outlines are vaguely traced, but the effects upon the vast variety of life in the ocean are still largely unknown.

The biggest one is a phosphate desert that fills most of the Pacific northward from the equator, almost from shore to shore, to a line drawn between southern California and Japan.

This area, near its surface, is poor in phosphates, which are indispensable fertilizers alike for plants of the land and of the sea. In the ocean the phosphates are used particularly by the microscopic plants, which are the basic food of all fish.

These plants, constituents of the so-called plankton, develop mostly within 100 or 200 feet of the surface, growth at lower depths being prevented by an insufficient amount of sunlight.

In all the North Pacific, says Dr. Moberg, between latitudes 10 and 40, except a few stations near the California coast, the phosphate content is from five to 15 times smaller than in other Pacific waters. He attributes this condition to the nature of the surface currents, which form a sort of sea within a sea, and to the failure of the deeper, phosphate-rich waters to mix with the surface water.

In the midst of this phosphate desert and especially south of it is the "oxygenless" water, or rather, water of a very low oxygen content, the latest discovery among ocean peculiarities.

Oxygenless means lack of dissolved oxygen, that is, of oxygen from the air, and does not refer to the composition of water, each particle of which consists of two particles of hydrogen and one particle of oxygen.

Dr. Moberg, one of the scientists to discover the oxygen-deficient waste while aboard the yacht Carnegie, says it is not certain that fish could live in this water.

This layer of nearly oxygenless water, which has a thickness of about 1500 feet and occurs at 300 or more feet below the surface is considered another indication of the lake-like character of the upper water strata of the mid-Pacific

Oxygen enters the seat at its surface, and the amount depends chiefly upon temperature, but also upon pressure and the action of waves and wind.

The ability of the water to dissolve or retain oxygen decreases as the water becomes warmer, and consequently more oxygen dissolves in the polar regions than in the tropics.

Since oxygen travels through water at an extremely slow rate only a narrow layer at the surface receives this gas directly from the atmosphere. To other depths oxygen is carried by water currents.

ASSERTS RASKOB FACES BITTER OPPOSITION IN MISSOURI

Kansas City Star Says Kemper and Reed Will Fight Democratic Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 18.—The Kansas City Star says John J. Raskob's management of the Democratic party can count on some bitter opposition from its efforts to retain control of the party in 1932.

The newspaper cites the declination of William T. Kemper, national commiteeman from Missouri, to follow Raskob and Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Executive Committee in their efforts to "line up" the party in advance of the convention and states that former Senator James A. Reed has made no secret of his violent opposition to the two party leaders.

"Shortly Reed may be expected to speak out in open meeting," the Star says. "His friends have been planning for the former Senator to make a speech over a national radio hookup."

"The dominant Reed group is wet," the Star continues, "but the feeling against Raskob is so bitter that the Reed following contends it will not follow Raskob on this point."

The boy shot himself at the home of his grandfather after taking his second semester final examination.

OAK THAT SAVED HUNTED MAN'S LIFE GUARDED IN DEED

Civil War Episode Recalled by Provision That Tree Must Be Preserved.

By the Associated Press.

EMINENCE, Mo., April 18. — A large oak tree on the old Joshua Chilton homestead near here, has legal protection for its life in appreciation of the part it played in saving the life of Alex Chilton during the Civil War. Provision is made in the deed to the property that this oak must be preserved, this obligation being carried by each owner.

Alex, his brother Joshua, and four other men reputed Southern sympathizers were captured during the Civil War by a party of bushwhackers near Salem, Mo. They were told they could have their choice of being shot down or of running for their lives. Alex was the only one who elected to run. The others were slain. Alex eluded his pursuers for a time but they picked up his trail near the Chilton farm. He climbed an oak tree and remained hidden there until after they gave up the search.

INDIAN LAND OWNERS FACING STARVATION IN OKLAHOMA

Newspaper Says Removal of Government Restrictions April 25 Will Cause Misery.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., April 18.—The Daily Oklahoman says that many land-owning Indians belonging to the Five Civilized Tribes, from whom Government restrictions will be removed April 25, will be left in a semi-starving condition.

As restricted tribesmen, the Indians are wards of the Government, which approves their expenditures and has general control over their affairs.

The Oklahoman story was printed just as Indian Commissioner Charles J. Rhoads and a congressional committee arrived in the State to look into conditions among the various tribes.

"The coming open season on Indian lands will be doubly miserable," the newspaper says, "owing to the fact that many of the Indian land owners now are in a semi-starving condition and are undertaking to sustain life by digging wild onions and poke in the woods and fields. An open season on Indian land-grabbing at any time is something to cause conscientious persons to shudder."

When the Red Cross withdraws its aid, the article continues, as it plans to do when the current allotment of money has been consumed, "hunger will drive unfortunate Indians to succumb to the white man's greed, and they will be tempted to part with newly released land for whatever the white man offers."

SAYS SENATE HAS FALLEN INTO LOW PUBLIC ESTEEM

Chief of Washington Bureau of New York Times Asserts Press Feeds It Publicity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The views of two newspaper men on political Washington were outlined yesterday to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Richard V. Oulahan, chief of the Washington Bureau of the New York Times, said the Senate had fallen into low estate in public opinion.

Oulahan said the Senate had become the greatest source of news in Washington, more so than the White House. As a result, he added, newspaper men "feed that august body with the meat of publicity which enhances its sense of power and importance."

"And this is so," he continued, "in face of the fact that the Senate has fallen into low esteem before the none too critical or observing or interested eye of public opinion. The Senate realizes that state of affairs and wonders at it, but so long as an indignant public opinion is not directed through the ballot box at any considerable number of individuals in its personnel, it goes serenely on in the same old way, conscious of a belief in its power and prideful of that belief."

CRITICISES POLICY ON RUSSIA

Editor of New Republic Urges Diplomatic Recognition.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—The diplomatic attitude of non-recognition of the Soviet Union by the United States was criticised by George H. Soule Jr., editor of the New Republic, in an address last night at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

This attitude, he said, was not compatible with economic recognition extended the Soviet Union in commerce and industry, nor were embargoes and threats of further political interference with commerce harmonious with the effort to win Russian trade. "So far," he asserted, "our various conflicting actions with regard to Russia have appeared to be built on trivial prejudiced, misinformed or partial grounds, rather than upon any broad and rational policy."

TAX FORFEITURE GAINS 2104 IN FIVE YEARS

Jackson County (Ill.) Clerk Explains Increasing Debt and Decreasing Revenue.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., April 18.—County Clerk Boyd Thorp, speaking at the County Supervisors' meeting, said Jackson County's debt of $40,000 is the third lowest in the State with some county debts as high as $200,000.

Of the possible $62,000 revenue Jackson County receives from all sources, $24,000 is expended annually for charities, Clerk Thorp told the board, with $10,000 for the courts together with the cost of elections.

Tax items are distributed as follows: State tax, 8 cents; county, 8 3-10; town, 4; city and village, 14 4-10; road and bridge, 9 3-10; county bonds, 3; drainage, 2; schools (county average), 51. The State tax items includes county highways and county roads and only 5½ per cent is for county expenses. Out of its share the county annually pays out $24,312.23, or 47 per cent for charities.

Thorp showed the board that the county's revenue had decreased $8508.17 annually in the past 10 years. In 1929, he said, $53,467.53 was expended for county revenues, but the county collected only a little over $46,000.

In 1926 only one property forfeiture for delinquent taxes was on the books, Clerk Thorp said. Then he revealed that in 1930 appeared 2105 such forfeitures. In Murphysboro Township 54 per cent of the revenue went for schools alone and in Carbondale 58 per cent for schools.

Ed Akin of Elkville defeated Ed Sherman of De Soto Township for chairmanship of the County Board. Dr. Lingle was elected county physician.

BEST LEADERS OF BLIND THOSE WHO ALSO ARE SIGHTLESS

Capt. Ian Fraser Says They Have Greater Understanding of Psychology of Handicapped.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The best leaders of the blind are men and whom who are themselves blind, Capt. Ian Fraser said yesterday. He lost his sight in the World War and now is head of St. Dunstan's and a member of the British Parliament.

Fraser was speaking before the World Conference on Work for the Blind, which closed its formal session yesterday. The 120 delegates from 37 nations who convened at the call of President Hoover, will go to Philadelphia Monday. They are to be received at the White House later in the week.

"The natural leaders of the blind," said Fraser, "are those who are themselves blind. They have a greater understanding of the psychology of the people with whom they are dealing and frequently added authority is given to what they say to their followers by the fact that they are themselves experts in overcoming the difficulties imposed by blindness.

"This should be borne in mind, and in every country encouragement should be given to young blind people people who have gifts of leadership to come forward and help guide the blind community. Governmental departments, municipal authorities and voluntary associations for the blind should, wherever possible, give employment to suitable blind persons in advisory and executive posts."

The conference closed with a series of round-table discussions. Among the leaders were Mrs. Mary Dranga Campbell of St. Louis, executive director of the Missouri Commission for the Blind, and Miss Lydia Y. Hayes, chief executive officer of the New Jersey Commission for the Blind, at Newark.

COTTON CLOSES HIGHER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Cotton opened steady today: unchanged to an advance of 4 points.

There may have been a little selling on the relatively easy showing of Liverpool, but it was readily absorbed by trade buying and week-end covering.

Offerings continued light and prices worked up during the early trading, with May advancing to 10.28 and October to 10.88, or about 10 to 11 points net higher, before the session had gone far. The relative steadiness of cotton as compared with the securities market recently is said to have made some impression on sentiment, and the buying of yesterday and this morning was attributed partly to covering, coupled with a little more trade demand.

Liverpool cable said that local and continental liquidation in that market had been absorbed by trade buying to fix prices on call sales. Egyptian futures in Alexandria were unchanged to 8 points higher. The amount of cotton on shipboard at U. S. ports awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 58,000 bales against 107,000 last year.

Futures closed steady, 11 to 14 points higher: May 10.29-30; July 10.55; October 10.89-90; December 11.13-14; January 11.24-25; March 11.45; spot steady; middling 10.30.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Raw sugar was quiet today and, in absence of business, prices were unchanged, with duty frees offered at 3.28c, but no buying interest above 3.25c.

Futures were quiet, with trading mostly in the way of evening-up for over the week-end adjournment. Prices moved within narrow limits and after opening unchanged to 1 point higher on covering and a little commission house buying, that appeared to be promoted by the steadiness of London, the market reacted under liquidation and a little selling by houses with Cuban connections. Final prices were unchanged to 1 point lower on active positions, with sales of only 4800 tons. May closed 1.24c; July, 1.32c; Sept., 1.40c; Dec., 1.48c; Jan., 1.50c; March, 1.56c.

There was no change in refined, with refiners listing at 4.50c, while second hands are available at from 4.42½c to 4.45c. Withdrawals on old contracts were of fair proportions, but there was little new business, even in second hand quarters.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximated sales, 4800 tons; May, 1.24; July, 1.32; September, 1.40; December, 1.48; January, 1.50; March, 1.56.

Earnings Reports.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Magma Copper Co. reported for the first quarter net earnings of $111,425 before Federal taxes, against $388,676 in the first quarter of 1930.

Discussing results of operation of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad in 1930, the annual report of H. A. Scandrett, president, cites a reduction of 16.8 per cent in operating revenue and a cut of 12.8 per cent in expenses, compared with 1929. The report showed total profit and loss balance was $7,685,656 at the end of 1930, a decrease of $7,021,035 compared with the end of 1929.

Net earnings of Westvaco Chlorine Products Corporation and subsidiaries for the first quarter of 1931 amounted to $239,439, compared with $239,762 for the corresponding period last year.

Net earnings of the Chicago Yellow Cab Co., Inc., for the first quarter of 1931 amounted to $408,299 compared with $526,498 for the first three months of 1930.

Net income of the Federal Water Service Corporation for the year ending Jan. 31, 1931, was $2,894,613, compared with $3,402,142 for the preceding year.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Cotton goods were quiet today and prices continued easy in print cloth and narrow sheeting markets. Finished goods were moving freely on past orders. Dress goods openings in the woolen and worsted houses begin Monday. Burlaps were firm. Rayon continued to sell freely. Raw silk was unchanged and dull. Silk goods production was being curtailed.

WHEAT MARKET CLOSES HIGHER IN LOCAL TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 18.—Wheat closed ⅞@1⅛c higher today, corn being ¼c down on May and ⅛c up on July. It was estimated that European countries took about 2,000,000 bushels of wheat. Report of dust storm in part of Canada and of France raising the quota of foreign wheat that can be used were included in news of day.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅞d to 1d higher.

Winnipeg closed 1⅜@1⅞c higher.

July wheat opened at 62⅛, September wheat 62c, May corn 60¾c, and September corn 62⅞c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 77,000 bushels, compared with 49,000 last week and 148,400 last year, included 29 cars local and 26 through; corn receipts, which were 116,200 bushels, compared with 78,400 last week and 152,600 last year, included 71 cars local and 12 through; oats receipts, which were 81,400 bushels, compared with 94,000 last week and 184,800 last year, included 29 cars local and eight through. Hay receipts were 20 cars local and 14 through.

EXPORT SALES FACTOR IN RISE OF WHEAT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Big export buying hoisted wheat today to a new high price record for the season, 69 cents a bushel, December delivery. It was estimated that European countries bought 2,000,000 bushels or more from North America. Upturns were in the face of selling of Chicago July delivery by houses with connections Southwest. The official weather forecast gave little hope of important moisture next week in the United States grain belt.

Wheat closed strong, ⅛c off to 1⅞c up. Corn ¼c lower to ⅝c higher; oats unchanged to ¼c advance and provisions unchanged to 5c decline.

A report that France had raised the quota of foreign wheat that millers would be permitted to use had an immediate bullish effect on grain prices today.

Canadian report of dust storms tended also to stimulate buying. Wheat started unchanged to 1¼ higher and afterward held near to the initial figures. Corn started at a shade decline to ¼ advance and subsequently declined some.

An increase to 20 per cent in the amount of imported wheat allowed for mixture with native wheat in France was promptly interpreted as foreshadowing enlarged demand for shipments from North America. The increase of the import quota was 5 per cent, and was generally taken here to mean that French home-grown supplies had been worked down to a point where necessity forced foreign buying. Counting further as a price strengthening influence was a cable from a British trade source that European wheat seeding had been delayed by the cold spring, that stocks on hand were generally small, and that consuming countries were expected to purchase heavily during the next two months.

Overnight purchases of more than 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for Trans-Atlantic shipment were announced. Enlarged receipts of corn made feed grains relatively weak.

Provisions were easy, responsive to downturns in hog values.

BEARS TAKE PROFITS IN STOCKS; FIRM PRICE CLOSE

Auburn Auto Again Is Wild Performer, Dropping 41 Points to 195 or About 100 Under, Tuesday's Peak — Rallies to Above 200.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Bears took profits in the last half hour of trading in today's stock market, giving the list a final upturn and a firm closing for the first time in five days.

The market sold off moderately during the early part of the short Saturday session, but with the annual meeting of U. S. Steel on Monday, and the possibility of constructive developments, bears felt it wise to buy back at least part of the stock they had sold short. U. S. Steel, after declining a fraction to a new low, at 130, rallied to close about 2 points net higher. Most of the so-called pivotal stocks were well supported during the early decline.

Auburn was again a wild performer, dropping 41 points to 195, or about 100 points under the peak price touched on Tuesday. It later rallied to close a little above 200.

Some Net Gains.

Several shares ended the day with net advances of a point or two, including American Can, General Motors, General Electric, New York Central, Air Reduction, Baltimore & Ohio, National Biscuit, Bethlehem Steel, Public Service of New Jersey, American Waterworks, Stone and Webster, American Telephone, New York Central and Southern Pacific. Allied Chemical and Lambert, each gained 3. Sales for the two-hour session were about 1,300,000 shares.

The market was governed primarily by technical conditions. During the decline since Monday, bears have been rather wary, owing to the small volume of selling, and the heavy liquidation in the last hour yesterday looked like a selling climax for the time being. There has been considerable apprehension lest the list be getting oversold. In fact, there have been vague rumors that some of the large operators were planning a run in of shorts.

Copper Metal Eases.

The week-end business and trade news continued in the same vein of the past two weeks. Youngstown steel output, as estimated for next week, is placed at 40 per cent of capacity, against 41 in the previous week.

Copper metal has again eased, with a sale reported at 9½ cents a pound, completely cancelling its recent upturn to 10 cents.

U. S. STEEL AND KRUPP IN PATENT USE AGREEMENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—An arrangement has been concluded by United States Steel Corporation with the Krupp interests of Germany whereby United States Steel will have the American rights for the manufacture of rust-resisting, heat-resisting and other alloy steels under Krupp patents.

James A. Farrell, president of United States Steel, said this arrangement, which includes the collaboration of Krupp with respect to technical matters in connection with the corrosion-resisting and heat-resisting steels, will apply to the products of the Illinois Steel Co., Carnegie Steel Co., American Steel & Wire Co., American Sheet & Tin Plate Co., National Tube Co. and Lorain Steel Co.

The major products manufactured by these companies in corrosion-resisting and heat-resisting steels include shapes, plates, bars, strips, wire products, rope, sheets, tubes and castings.

CUSTOM SMELTER REPORTED HAVING SOLD COPPER AT 9 1-2C

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Trade circles today reported that a sale of copper has been made by a custom smelter at 9½ cents a pound, a concession of a quarter of a cent from the ruling quotation yesterday and equal to the low figure reached in the price slump last fall.

Other custom smelters were said to be open to bids at 9½ cents a pound. Producers continued to hold their metal at 10 cents, delivered, and the export price remained at 10.30 cents.

Meanwhile, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported an increase in production for March, a development interpreted in the trade as bearish. World output last month was placed at 136,655 tons, against 128,685 tons in February and 129,390 tons in January.

Production in the United States last month likewise showed an increase, totaling 57,922 tons, against 55,229 tons in February and 53,429 tons in January.

RUSSO-GERMAN AGREEMENT ON $75,000,000 SOVIET ORDER

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 18.—The German Industrial League today published the text of the Russo-German agreement on the $75,000,000 worth of orders for machinery and other goods which the Soviet Government will place in Germany during 1931.

According to the agreement, the orders must be placed between April 15 and Aug. 31. They are to be authorized by the Soviet Supreme Economic Council and countersigned by the Soviet trade delegation, which is now here making the arrangements.

These orders are outside the regular business transactions between Russia and Germany and are subject to individual agreements between th Soviet Economic Council and German firms.

The terms of payment are to be 20 per cent with the orders and the rest in drafts maturing in from 13 to 28 months.

The interest on the contracts is payable quarterly at a rate of 2 per cent above the Reichsbank rate.

MERCANTILE REVIEWS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18. — The weekly mercantile reviews:

Dun's: "Continued weakness in numerous commodities reflects a lack of forward momentum in general business activities. Sentiment had been buoyed by the moderate seasonal uplift of the first quarter and rising stock markets had accentuated the improved feeling, but subsequent movements have not wholly supported the earlier brighter outlook. Recurring depression in securities even without aggressive selling pressure, naturally has been the reverse of cheering, and the maintenance of unusual ease in money rates has failed to provide a decisive stimulant. Further action on dividends, with scattered exceptions, has been adverse, disclosing the reduced earnings of many corporations resulting from the prolonged industrial setback."

Weekly bank clearings $8,422,537,000, a decrease of 23 per cent from a year ago. Outside of New York there was a decrease of 22.8 per cent.

Bradstreet's: "Trade and industrial developments of the week are rather irregular with the bulk of such changes as are visible rather decidedly on the quiet side. In wholesale and jobbing trade and in industry there has been a continuance of the ebb in activity developing after the Easter rush, whereas in retail trade the advent of warm, spring weather has buoyed final distribution noticeably, this latter in some few cases being reflected in a little better buying from jobbers. Buying of ready-to-wear apparel for men and women has been prominently noted at retail, in a number of cases stimulated by 'sales' which have evoked varying responses at different cities."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Bond sales on the New York Stock Exchange today were $4,160,000; compared with $8,826,000 yesterday; $4,700,000 a week ago and holiday a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $845,604,000, compared with $948,456,000 a year ago and $790,246,000 two years ago.

Quotations on all Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar. That is, for instance, a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar, and not $99.24.

Following is a complete list of bonds traded in on the New York Stock Exchange today, giving sales, highest, lowest and closing prices. In sales, 000 omitted:

MAYOR WALKER REFUSES COUNSEL, 'STANDS ON RECORD'

States His Position When Unsolicited Defense Is Made by Former Critic.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Mayor Walker, finishing his reply to the charges of incompetency that have been filed against him, has announced flatly that he intends to stand on the record of his administration.

"I want no attorneys or counsel or advocates," he said. "Either the record that I am responsible for is good or it is bad. If the record's good, I'm good. If the record is bad, I'm bad."

The Mayor stated his position yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Estimate when Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, began an unsolicited defense of the present administration. In the past Browne has been a frequent critic of the Mayor.

The Mayor's answer to the charge of condoning negligence and encouraging corruption probably will be filed with Gov. Roosevelt Monday.

The investigation into the District Attorney's office was widened yesterday with the announcement that the inquiry, when it is resumed next week, will take into consideration the "general conduct" of the office.

$50,000 IN JEWELS TAKEN FROM FOUR BALTIMORE WOMEN

$30,000 Necklace in Loot Obtained by Two Robbers Who Trailed Victims From Opera.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 18.—Jewels worth $50,000 were taken from the fingers and necks of four Baltimore women early today by two young masked robbers who held them up as they were returning to their homes from an opera. A $30,000 necklace was included in the loot. Both robbers were armed.

The robbery occurred in the driveway of the Green Spring Valley home of Miss Peggy Chew Stewart, who had been driven home by her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Miller, and their three daughters, the Misses Nancy, Grace and Edith Miller. Miller is a chemical manufacturer.

The robbers' car after following for more than a mile, halted behind the Miller automobile in the drive and a shot was fired at the tires by the robbers. The robbers pulled the rings from the fingers of the women and unclasped valuable necklaces. Miller was forced to surrender his watch. Then they demanded the key to the car. With this in their possession they ran to their own car and drove away, but the number on the license tags was noted by the victims.

97 NEW YORK PHYSICIANS ACCUSED OF WHISKY FRAUD

Illegal Prescription Transactions With Druggists Alleged; Five Men Held.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Ninety-seven physicians of New York and Long Island were named yesterday at the beginning of a campaign to stamp out supposedly fraudulent transactions in liquor prescriptions between doctors and druggists. Five men were arrested, two of them druggists.

Prohibition Director McCampbell charged that one of the men, an agent for a legitimate whisky and alcohol house, supplied whisky to druggists under permit, then got it back from the druggists and covered up the transaction by the use of fraudulent prescriptions. It is alleged the group operated a cutting plant in Brooklyn.

SYNDICATE FORMED TO ACQUIRE ASSETS OF TRI-CITY STATE BANK

Receiver for Closed Depository at Madison Says Surety Firm Has Paid in $19,975.

Formation of a syndicate to purchase control of the Union Trust Co., of Madison, and acquire the assets of the Tri-City State Bank, which was placed in receivership last September, was announced yesterday by N. H. Ward, receiver for the closed bank which had deposits of about $250,000.

Ward said depositors were eager for the syndicate to carry out its plan since it was proposed to pay depositors 20 per cent in cash immediately and issue time certificates for 30 per cent more, 7½ per cent being payable each six months. Depositors already have received a 20 per cent cash payment.

The receiver, who also is secretary of the East Side Manufacturers' Association, announced that the American Surety Co. had paid into the bank's funds $19,975, the amount of the shortage found in the accounts of R. B. Studebaker, cashier, now under indictment for embezzlement.

HARRY LEVIN'S DEATH FOUND TO BE DUE TO HEART DISEASE

Part Owner of Gambling Club Was Convicted in Jack Daniel Conspiracy.

Harry Levin, part owner of the Biltmore Club, Gravois road gambling resort, died from heart disease, an autopsy performed after his death yesterday at Jewish Hospital disclosed. Levin, 43 years old, died after a brief illness, the nature of which was not completely diagnosed.

He was one of 14 defendants convicted in 1925 of conspiracy in Federal Court in the Jack Daniel whisky "milking" case, and was sentenced to two years in Federal prison and fined $5000. Levin, it was shown at the trial, was one of a group of St. Louisans who purchased the warehouse where liquor was stored, from Lem Motlow. It was not proved he had knowledge of the removal of the whisky. He formerly was a Deputy Constable in the court of the late Justice of the Peace "Jimmie" Miles.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow from the family residence, 6223 Alamo avenue. His widow and three children survive.

Mrs. Mulholland fled screaming and her husband fired at her, police say.

FINED $1000 FOR TAKING BET

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 18.—A $1000 fine, said to be the largest ever imposed in Maryland for accepting bets on horses, was imposed yesterday by Judge Eugene O'Dunne in Criminal Court on Harry Mendel, accused of bookmaking. His attorneys served notice of an peal.

Mendel was arrested April 11 in a raid on a political club. Police said they found betting paraphernalia. Mendel denied the charge placed against him and said he did not own the equipment seized.

JAPANESE OBJECT TO CHINA'S PRESS POLICY

Correspondents Say They Are Denied Use of Wire Facilities.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 18.—Representative Japanese newspapers constituting the Shimbun Rengo, an agency organized as is the Associated Press in the United States, held an urgent conference Thursday and adopted resolutions protesting against what they termed the Chinese Government's oppression of Japanese newspapermen in China, particularly Shimbun Rengo's correspondents."

Foreign Minister Shidehara has been requested by the Japanese newspapers to protest against the action of the Chinese Government in preventing Japanese journalists from using telephonic and telegraphic facilities in China, which Shimbun Rengo says is "little short of a challenge of the freedom of the press."

The clash between the Chinese officials and foreign newspapermen grew out of the resignation of Hu Han-Min from the standing committee of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang early in March. This leader objected to the plan to have a provisional constitution pending the adoption of a permanent one. His views clashed with those of the other leaders, including President Chiang Kai-shek, and it was reported in press dispatches that Hu Han-Min was arrested and imprisoned. This report was denied by the Chinese official agency.

It is contended by the newspapers embraced in the Shimbun Rengo agency that the correspondents of that agency in China reported "full facts in the Hu Han-Min detention case, giving statements from the Chinese Foreign Office, from President Chiang Kai-shek and other Chinese officials." But it is alleged by Shimbun Rengo that Chinese authorities wanted Japanese correspondents to correct the original dispatches concerning Hu Han-Min's detention and assert that Hu Han-Min resigned voluntarily.

The Japanese correspondents asked to have an interview with Hu Han-Min to determine the full facts. Japanese correspondents said this was refused and they were denied the further uses of Chinese communications. The Japanese Consul at Nanking protested and after five days the ban on communications was raised on all Japanese correspondents except those employed by Shimbun Rengo.

OHIO POSSE HUNTS KIDNAPER OF GIRL, 13; SHE IS FOUND

Crippled Deaf Mute Discovered in Auto in Garage Suffering From Fright and Exposure.

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 18.—A posse of 40 men is searching the vicinity of New Waterford, 20 miles south of here, for Charles Clark, 42 years old, of East Palestine, who last night kidnaped 13-year-old Wilma Blazevick, a crippled deaf mute, and early today directed a farmer to a garage where the child was found.

The girl was discovered in an automobile in D. E. Rupert's garage, suffering from exposure and fright. She will be examined today to determine whether she was otherwise harmed.

Constable Harry Bricker said Clark, who had been living in a shanty near the girl's home, broke in the rear door and kidnaped her at 9:45 o'clock last night while the family was in another part of the house.

An all-night search followed discovery of Wilma's disappearance. It ended when Clarence Cope, a farmer, brought word that Clark had come to him at 6:15 a. m. today and told where the girl was. Clark told Cope he had been drinking and did not know what he was doing.

WIFE-BEATING ALLEGED BY DIVORCE SUIT WITNESS

Deposition Taken in Action Against C. C. Miles, President of Hodiamont Bank.

Mrs. Charles C. Miles, wife of the president of the Hodiamont Bank, one morning in November, 1929, bore marks of a beating she said her husband had inflicted, Mrs. Jeanette George, 5532A Page boulevard, stated in a deposition taken yesterday in the office of Gus Nations, attorney for Mrs. Miles in her suit for divorce. Mrs. Miles filed suit in Clayton recently, naming a corespondent, 10 minutes after he filed suit alleging general indignities.

Mrs. George, who said she was a friend of the family, testified Mrs. Miles sent for her. When she reached the house, at 6753 Bartmer avenue, she said, Mrs. Miles opened the door. One of Mrs. Miles' eyes was closed and the other was blackened, Mrs. George related. She said Miles appeared, admitted striking his wife, and remarked: "I guess I'm a brute," and expressed sorrow. Mrs. George said he denied his domestic difficulties were due to the woman named as corespondent.

$12 A WEEK FOR WOMAN WHO GAVE HUSBAND $75,000

Mrs. Kwasney, 63, Gets Aminomy Allowance Pending Her Suit for Divorce.

Mrs. Helen Kwasney, 63-year-old widow, who said she gave all her money, about $75,000, to her 26-year-old husband, Rudolph Kwasney, received temporary alimony allowance of $12 a week and $150 attorney's fees by order of Circuit Judge Beck yesterday.

Mrs. Kwasney, who is suing for divorce on the ground of general indignities, took the stand for a few minutes to testify that her husband had not supported her for six months. Kwasney, a former cook and odd-job man who opened a restaurant on Washington avenue after their marriage in December, 1929, did not appear in court.

DEMURRER FILED TO SUIT ATTACKING BORDLEY TRUST

Bank, As Trustee in Will of Widow of Liggett & Myers' Director, Would Administer Fund.

The Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. filed a demurrer in Circuit Judge Rosskopf's court yesterday to the suit of Mrs. Adele Tatum and Mrs. Adele D. Chambers of Los Angeles, Cal., to et aside a trust created by Mrs. Blanche Bordley for the care of so-called incurable chronic invalids who do not respond to ordinary hospital treatment.

Mrs. Tatum and Mrs. Chambers, who were a sister and niece of Mrs. Bordley, respectively, alleged that the trust provisions are void. The trust fund has been estimated at approximately $500,000.

It is contended by the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co., which was named trustee in the will, that the suit does not state a cause of action and should be dismissed. According to plaintiffs they and four other relatives of Mrs. Bordley are her sole heirs-at-law and as such are entitled to the property held in the trust contract. Mrs. Bordley, who was the widow of Daniel Bordley, a director of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., died a year ago.

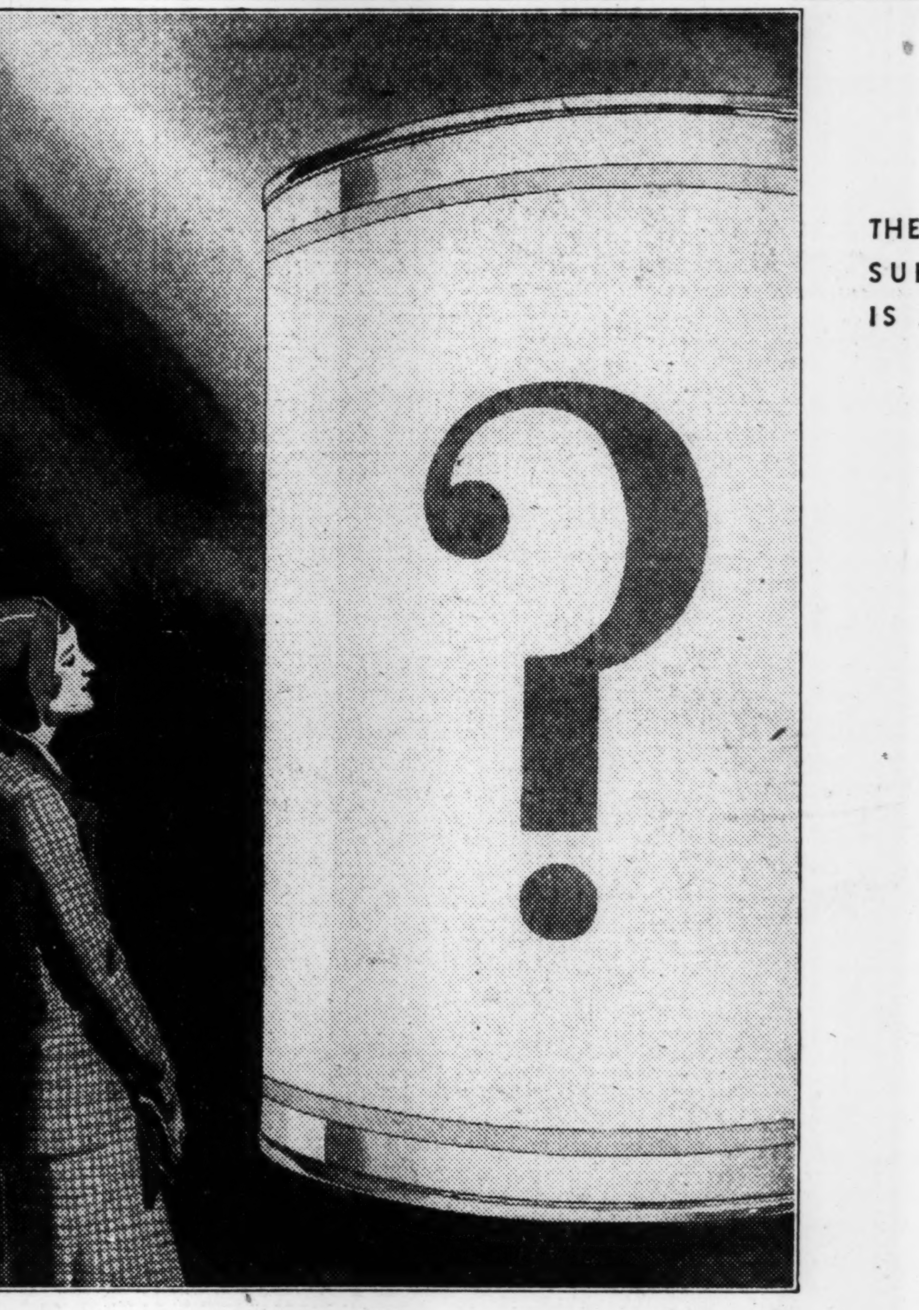
TWO SOUGHT FOR QUESTIONING IN KIDNAPING OF BREWER

Wisconsin Man Is Back Home After Release by His Abductors.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Two men were being sought today for questioning in connection with the kidnaping of Fred J. Blumer, Monroe (Wis.) brewer, who was released in Decatur, Ill. Martin O'Leary, reputed to be a former beer runner, was one of the men sought. Roy Marshalk, who was once linked with labor disturbances, police said, was the other.

Meanwhile, Blumer rested at his Monroe home. His relatives and friends denied that money was paid for his release.



THE ANSWER TO SUBSTITUTION IS ALWAYS.... "NO"

HOW CAN YOU JUDGE THE VALUE BEHIND AN UNKNOWN LABEL?

IT IS EASY enough to buy wisely when you can see what you are getting.

But how about those products that you can't see?

Foods, drugs, toilet necessities—all hidden by a bottle or a package.

If you do not recognize the name on the label, how can you judge the value behind it?

You can't!

Shopping experience has proved this to millions of women. But experience uses bitter methods. Costly methods.

When you buy only those products which you see advertised regularly week after week, in newspapers and magazines — when you are guided by the names you know—you are safe.

But when you experiment with untried brands—substitute products which you are told are "just as good"—you may be sorry.

The manufacturer who knows the wisdom of advertising also knows the folly of false claims.

His integrity is the integrity of his product. Your good will is the rock on which he stands. If it crumbles, his success goes with it into dust.

The truthful, consistent advertising of any manufacturer is proof of his pride in the merchandise he offers you.

But it is even more than that. It is his promise of constant quality and definite purity. Of honest weight. Of full value in return for your money and your confidence.

These facts are published by this newspaper in an earnest attempt to help you buy more wisely.

Accurate information is your only positive protection against the many disappointments which often hide behind an unknown label.

DEMURRER FILED TO SUIT ATTACKING BORDLEY TRUST

Bank, As Trustee in Will of Widow of Liggett & Myers' Director, Would Administer Fund.

The Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. filed a demurrer in Circuit Judge Rosskopf's court yesterday to the suit of Mrs. Adele Tatum and Mrs. Adele D. Chambers of Los Angeles, Cal., to et aside a trust created by Mrs. Blanche Bordley for the care of so-called incurable chronic invalids who do not respond to ordinary hospital treatment.

Mrs. Tatum and Mrs. Chambers, who were a sister and niece of Mrs. Bordley, respectively, alleged that the trust provisions are void. The trust fund has been estimated at approximately $500,000.

It is contended by the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co., which was named trustee in the will, that the suit does not state a cause of action and should be dismissed. According to plaintiffs they and four other relatives of Mrs. Bordley are her sole heirs-at-law and as such are entitled to the property held in the trust contract. Mrs. Bordley, who was the widow of Daniel Bordley, a director of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., died a year ago.

One-sided games ruled in County League baseball play yesterday afternoon. Staging a comeback in the fifth inning, Coach Thompson's University City Indians pounded two Wellston pitchers to win, 19 to 2, in the feature contest on the Wellston field, to remain tied with Jennings for first place in the Northern Division of the circuit. Ferguson climbed to fourth place, defeating Ritenour, 7 to 6, in the only close game of the day.

In the Southern Division, Maplewood trounced Clayton handily, 16 to 4, and Webster ran over Bayless, 18 to 1. The winners remained in a three-way tie with Kirkwood for the lead on the south side. Chaminade routed Country Day, 27 to 5, in a nonleague contest.

Today, Coach Froebel Gaines' Webster nine will go to Alton, Ill., to play the Western M. A. Prep League team, in a practice game at 2 o'clock.

In the University City-Wellston game, the weakening of Al Murray, Wellston's pitcher, was unaccountable. In four innings he had allowed no hits, two runs, four walks and had fanned four batters. The two runs were results of a passed ball and a poor play at first. In the fifth frame he issued four passes which, with two safeties, netted two runs.

Murray failed to redeem himself in the sixth, and after letting in five more runs on three passes, a triple, and a single, he was replaced by Von Behren, who proved equally as poor.

Ferguson Rallies to Win.

Ferguson took an early lead in its game with Ritenour, but in the third inning bunched hits by the Ritenour sluggers pushed across five runs to gain a slight lead. Both nines were scoreless until the seventh when Ferguson came back to win, scoring the two needed runs. Elliott's relief hurling featured the latter part of the game, Ritenour making only four hits and no runs in the last four innings. The same boy was also strong on the offensive, poling a homer, a triple, and a single in four times to the plate.

So easy was Maplewood's victory over Clayton, due to the costly Clayton errors, that Coach Wahlbrink's players gained an 11-run lead over the losers before they could score once. Maplewood made only eight safeties. Frossard of Clayton hit a home run.

After his team scored 13 runs in the opening two frames, the Webster coach sent in a complete new team against Bayless, the second-stringers making five more counters. Bayless' single run came in the third inning. Naes, who walked, took second on a passed ball, third on an outfield fly, and then scored on Charpentier's single. The losers' poor fielding had a great deal to do with the defeat.

The Chaminade team, in opening the new season, appeared greatly improved in defeating Codasco. The winners pounded out 17 safeties to score 27 runs. The scoring was heaviest in the first half of the game, Chaminade weakening considerably in the latter part. Seven Codasco errors contributed to the winner's score.

EAST ST. LOUIS HIGH BEATS C. B. C., 14-12

In a game in which a total of 29 hits were made, C. B. C. lost to East St. Louis High yesterday, 14-12. Center fielder Majesky of East St. Louis was a lifesaver for his pitchers several times as he roamed in all directions for fine plays.

The two star hurlers of the opposing clubs, Rob Fuchs and Joe Hraba, started on the mound but were hit freely. Hraba lasted until the fourth inning. Fuchs hung on until the sixth when he and first-baseman Donohue exchanged places. Graff finished the game for C. B. C.

Mrs. Pressler Wins.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18. — Mrs. Leona Pressler of Glendale, won the California woman's golf championship for the third successive time here yesterday with a 5 and 4 victory over Mrs. Roy Green, Los Angeles. Mrs. Green, eight down at the twenty-first hole, made a startling rally in the remaining distance, but the champion's lead was too great.

NEW GOLF BALL CAUSES BRITISH RYDER CUP TEAM PLENTY TROUBLE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Whatever the reactions of America's golfing multitudes may be to the larger and lighter ball, it's a dud as far as the British professionals are concerned.

So says George M. Trautman, chairman of a committee that has just returned from a visit to Great Birtain where an official invitation was extended the British Ryder Cup team in London for the annual international matches at Scioto, Columbus, O., June 26. Trautman saw the British eligible for the team tackle the "balloon" sphere in three tryout tournaments. He heard plenty of comment on the ball, none of it good.

"The first thing that everyone asked me," Trautman said, "was how hard the wind blew over Scioto in June. They were much relieved to hear that the weather usually is calm about that time in Columbus, although I'll bet there are gales sweeping the course right now.

"The British professionals are having a lot of trouble handling the new ball in practice matches when the wind is blowing. I saw Abe Mitchell, one of Great Britain's longest clouters, hit three full wood shots on a 571-yard hole at St. Anne's where the wind sweeps in off the sea and still he was short of the green. They don't like the new ball."

British Cup Team Weakened.

Britain's chances in the coming Ryder Cup series have been hurt by the ineligibility of Percy Alliss and Aubrey Boomer, homebreds, who cannot play because of residence in other countries, and the refusal of Henry Cotton to accept the restrictions placed upon the squad.

To bolster the veterans, Charles and Ernest Whitcombe, Archie Compston, Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, the Britons are counting rather heavily on youngsters such as A. H. Padham, Sid Esterbrook and the 20-year-old W. J. Branch. Only Charles Whitcombe, the captain, is certain of his place on the team at the present time, Trautman said, and the eight players and two alternates who sail for New York June 10 probably will not be named until after the British open May 31, June 1 and 2.

"Only the Ryder cup eligibles are using the new ball," Trautman said. "The rest of the people—and everyone over there plays golf—are sticking to the old ball. The papers are full of golf and Diana Fishwick, the woman's champion, was quoted in one as saying that while it was unfortunate that the two greatest golfing nations in the world did not play similar balls, the difference in the two types should not bother good golfers. Miss Fishwick does not believe that Great Britain ever will adopt our type of ball. A great many of the British courses are windy and the new ball does not play well in the wind."

Bobby Jones, Trautman said, has lost none of his popularity in Great Britain by commercializing his golfing ability in motion pictures.

"He is still the great idol. A huge painting of him stands in the clubhouse at St. Anne's where he won the British open in 1926. They speak his name in whispers at St. Andrews. The caddies can show you the exact spots where he stood and just what he did with every stroke.

"I saw 128,000 at an international soccer match between England and Scotland in Glasgow. And I never heard a word about overemphasis."

Thayer Athletes Win.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KOSHKONONG, Mo., April 18.—The Trayer high school team walked away with the annual Oregon County track meet here, scoring 55 points. Other teams finished as follows: Alton 23, Koshkonong 20, Couch 14 and Collinsville 5.

The Couch team won the event for girls with 33 points. Koshkonong was second with 21 points. Alton third with 6 and Thayer scored 5.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Confidence, or Greed?

EITHER the management of the Fall River football club is the last word in confidence and cock-sureness, or it is jeopardizing its title chances for a few shekels.

That's the logical explanation why the Eastern U. S. F. A. Soccer finalists, who recently played the Chicago Bricklayers a tie game in the National championship series and who meet them again Sunday, are risking defeat by playing exhibition games in between title games.

Last Sunday the Fall River boys were held to a tie. Tuesday night they played in St. Louis in an exhibition game and some of the players said at the time they were worn out.

Today at Detroit they will play another exhibition game and then take the train for Chicago where they will enter the play-off with the Brickies. They will hardly be fresh and strong for the contest, one would say.

However, there is an ace in the hole for the Fall River owners—and how well they must know it. It smells of more money, too. It is this: If the Brickies beat Fall River Sunday, the series will be tied, necessitating still another championship struggle, attracting (probably) the best "gate" of the entire series.

Perhaps the owners of the Fall River Club are just a wee bit crazy—like a fox.

Pa, You Tell Him.

MAKING a professional athlete out of a college man presents a theme for study to the 80-year-old Dean Stanley Coulter of Purdue University. He asks:

"What can people think who spend money for universities to educate our youth, when they see these schools turning out baseball pitchers, halfbacks and coaches?"

Well, as we get it, the only kick Dad could have would be if Junior's report failed to show he was a good student, or if he left the university and became a charge on the parental pocketbook.

Dad and the taxpayer are not apt to see anything wrong in good reports, a sheepskin and a self-supporting graduate.

The number of boys who are diverted from their original educational programs by the lure of money to be made in sports is probably negligible.

* * *

A Matter of Money.

LAST year the number of teams in our local Municipal Baseball League fell off. This year, it is reported that a further shrinkage of more than 50 teams will be noted, reducing the total to around 150.

This need not be ascribed to a loss of baseball interest. It is chargeable to lack of funds by the backers of Muny league clubs.

It costs real money to finance these baseball outfits. A Muny team costs its supporter $500 or more at the very least. The entry fee is $100, which goes to pay for upkeep of grounds and umpires. Uniforms cost about $225 for the team. Baseballs cost a surprising total, due to lack of protection against lost or stolen balls. In one instance, called to the attention of the writer, a Municipal team used 16 dozen baseballs at $14 a dozen, which added another $224 to the total.

Backers of teams must also "throw parties" for the boys now and then which must run into another $100 at least, to say nothing of all the alleged money paid to crack batteries and players by some of the backers.

At a cost of between $500 and $700, even the joy of seeing the firm name spread on the manly bosom of 15 athletes may lack its customary appeal, in these times of Scotch tightness.

The Night Idea Growing.

THE year 1931 will go down in baseball history as the one in which night was turned into day. On every hand they're doing it, with improved lighting plants. Engineers are approaching the nearly perfect system where a cube of light measuring about 400 feet on three dimensions shows an equal intensity at all parts of the playing field. Not until that occurs will night baseball have had a fair test; but engineers now assure us that this stage has been approximated.

Already some 55 clubs in organized baseball have been equipped with lighting systems. Some of them have been brought right up to the minute. A fair test of night baseball is probable.

By next fall minor league magnates will know two things: First, whether night baseball can be played with satisfaction to players as well as the public. Second, whether the surge of cash customers toward the gates manifested last year was due to curiosity and the novelty of it, or to well-grounded appreciation.

* * *

Majors Opposed to It.

THE late President E. S. Barnard told this writer shortly before he died that it was extremely unlikely that the major leagues would ever adopt night baseball.

But one must consider that conditions in some various major league cities favor it. Los Angeles is larger than St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg or Washington, in population, yet it has found night baseball a success, although it has what St. Louis, Cincinnati and Pittsburg do not possess—a large transient population.

What is good for Los Angeles might conceivably be good for St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, etc., where the population as a whole is so largely employed during daylight hours.

It would not be surprising if some major league club tried the experiment. A lighting plant costs less than $20,000, which could be paid for even though only exhibition games, fights and wrestling bouts were held.

SILVER SEALS AND LAMBERTS TO ROLL AT HEIDEL'S ALLEYS

The roll-off of the tie between the Wooster Lamberts and the Silver Seals for the team championship of the Missouri State Bowling Association will be held at Heidel's alleys, Compton and Park avenues, next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock instead of the Arway alleys, as previously announced.

The change in the plans for the match resulted from a dispute as to the neutrality of the Arway and other alleys named for it between members of the two teams. An agreement has been made by all of the bowlers not to roll on Heidel's drives before the match.

The teams tied in the tournament at Kansas City with scores of 3064. Personnel of the teams to roll Wednesday will be the same as at Kansas City. The line-ups will be: For the Lamberts, Wooster Lambert, Dave Knapp, Joe Weis, Roy Nelson and Rudi Meyer and for the Seals, Ray Kasting, Frank Wilmas, E. Waibel, Bob Meinhardt and Chuck Hippe.

NAVY AND COLUMBIA CREWS MEET TONIGHT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 18.—"I Got Rhythm" will be the theme song for 16 sturdy oarsmen here this evening when they Navy and Columbia eights usher in the Eastern intercollegiate rowing season with a dual regatta on the Harlem River.

While the distance is only a mile and a half, a mere sprint in comparison to the four-mile grind at Poughkeepsie, today's race will furnish the first line of the chances of the two crews in the Hudson River classic in June. Navy and Columbia, together with the Washington Varsity, which administered a crushing defeat to California a week ago at Oakland, will be leading threats this year to Cornell's newly restored rowing supremacy.

Sets High School Mark.

BERKELEY, Cal., April 18.—Vernon Ball, Berkeley high school junior, today had equaled the national interscholastic high jump record by leaping 6 feet 3⅝ inches. That mark was first set in 1912 by W. M. Oler Jr. of the Pawling School, Cambridge, Mass.

TILDEN MEETS KAREL KOZELUH HERE TONIGHT

By Davison Obear.

William Tatem Tilden II of Philadelphia will oppose Karel Kozeluh, Czecho-Slovakian star, in the feature of three professional tennis matches to be played at The Arena tonight. The match between the two internationally known players will be the best three out of five sets. In one of the remaining contests, Robert Seller, Pacific Coast ace, will meet J. Emmett Pare, former National Clay Court champion, while the third match will bring the four players together in doubles.

The program is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock with Seller opposing Pare in singles. Following this Tilden will meet Kozeluh in another singles encounter which is scheduled to start at 9 o'clock. Tilden will then team with Pare to play Kozeluh and Seller in a doubles match which will complete the evening program.

When Big Bill Tilden steps on the court, it will be his fifth appearance in St. Louis. He won the National Clay Court championship at the Triple A Club in 1924 and 1925, and in 1927 played an indoor exhibition match at the Washington University Field House. When the trials for the United States Davis Cup team were held here in May, 1928, Tilden was captain of the squad.

Judging from the advance sale of tickets the crowd at The Arena is expected to be the largest to ever witness a tennis match in St. Louis. In the 1924 National Clay Court championship at Triple A the largest single day crowd was 3300 persons. This was on a Sunday when the semifinals were played.

Tickets for the matches may be obtained at The Arena and Coliseum ticket offices or at 921 Locust street, 1127 Pine street, and 409 North Broadway. Prices range from 50 cents to $2.

Tilden and his party, which included eight persons in addition to the players, arrived early today. Included in the group was Lock Wei, former Chinese Davis Cup star, who is acting as umpire in the matches on the present tour. The players are also carrying their own ball boys. The trainer for the players is Bill O'Brien, familiar to tennis enthusiasts as trainer for United States Davis cup teams.

Scranton Star Gains Victory in National Swim

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The nation's foremost mermaids, entered in the women's national swimming championships now in progress here, are finding world's records hard to beat. Five championship events have been run off in the first two days of competition and not a single record has fallen.

Helene Madison, Seattle star, who holds so many marks that it's almost impossible to keep track of them all, has given two fine performances so far, but she has broken no records.

After winning the 100-yard free-style title on the opening night, Miss Madison swam a great anchor leg to give the Washington Athletic Club of Seattle the 400-yard relay championship last night in 4:24 2-5, five seconds behind the world's record. The Women's Swimming Association of New York was second and the Los Angeles A. C. third.

The only other final last night saw Margaret Hoffman of Scranton, Pa., easily capture the 100-yard breast-stroke title in 1:24 2-5, compared to the world standard of 1:19 2-5, held by Agnes Geraghty. Eleanor Holm of the Women's Swimming Association of New York was second and Barbara Norris of the W. S. A. of Worcester, Mass., third.

The New York club leads in the team scores with 18 points, with the Washington A. C. second with 16 and the Los Angeles A. C. third with 10.

GOLFERS BLAME NEW BALL FOR HIGH SCORES IN HANDICAP EVENT

By W. J. McGoogan.

Elliott Whitbread, St. Louis district golf champion, and his partner, Jim Monroe, have in their possession today the merchandise prize offered for the best two-man score in the first monthly handicap tournament of 1931, conducted under the auspices of the St. Louis District Golf Association. Their total score was 141, made over the course of the Normandie Golf Club, yesterday, of which they are both members, was low in the field of nearly 150 golfers who competed.

Whitbread went around in 76 and his handicap was five, while his partner had a gross score of 75 and also had an award of five strokes.

Behind this pair were Leo Will Jr., North Hills, and J. R. Black, Forest Park, with 142.

Clarke Morse found that he was able to control the new larger and lighter golf ball in the wind over the difficult Normandie course, of which he and his brother, Coleman, were recently appointed professionals, better than anyone else for Clarke's 74 was the best gross score of the day.

Morse finished just two strokes over par despite the fact that he required three putts on the seventeenth and eighteenth greens.

All Pros Start From Scratch.

It was the first tournament of the kind in three years in which the professionals of the district were permitted to play. All the professionals started from scratch and did very well.

Most of the scores turned in were high, but the golf season has been rather backward here this year, and most of courses have not opened their regular tees and many of them have been using temporary greens.

Of course, most of those with high scores blamed the new ball; but the winter play of the professionals in the South did not indicate that there was much difference and no doubt by the time the next tournament rolls around a month hence all the players will have become accustomed to the new ball and their scores will be correspondingly better.

Normandie's course was in perfect condition yesterday. The rain of Thursday night had made the fairways just about right without slowing them up to any extent while the greens were smooth.

Cigarettes for "Birdies."

A cigarette manufacturer has been giving away a tin of 50 cigarettes for each birdie made on any of the golf courses in the district lately.

Many of those in yesterday's tournament claimed the prize. A representative of the company stated that although it is still very early in the year and the golfers have not hit their stride, the company has been distributing 35,000 cigarettes weekly in the St. Louis district, which would indicate that there have been 700 birdies a week made and more, for the company will only give one tin for each 18 holes, regardless of how many birdies are scored by a player.

DERBY HOPES—No. 9

By Dent McSkimming.

It is natural to look to a great sire to produce stake winners, but the reputation of Man o' War is not likely to be greatly enhanced by any of his four sons among the Kentucky Derby eligibles.

Neither Anchors Aweigh, War, Ironclad nor Frigate Bird set the world afire as 2-year-olds and not one is regarded as better than a 60 to 1 shot to win the Kentucky classic on May 16. Between the four of them they won only eight races out of 43 starts. War recently ran third in his first 3-year-old start.

Anchors Aweigh, the only stake winner of the group, finished up last season with four victories out of his last seven races. However, the opposition was never quite of Derby caliber and only one of his races was at a distance. His best performance was his victory in the Ardsley Handicap, on Nov. 7, at Empire City, when he came from behind to win at a mile and 70 yards on a muddy track. Six started but A. W. Wentzel's Opponent furnished the only real competition. He had the lead to the head of the stretch, where Anchors Aweigh forged to the front, coming around the outside. The time was good but not especially fast.

In winning the Autumn Days Stakes on Oct. 23 at Empire City, Anchors Aweigh again had very ordinary horses to beat. Carrying 120 pounds he ran the five and one-half furlongs in 1:06 3-5.

WITNESS FAILS STATE, TWO FREED BY JURY

Pair Charged With Burglary in Bridgeton, but Former Co-Defendant Changes Story.

Two young men charged with burglary were acquitted by a jury in Circuit Judge McElhinney's court at Clayton yesterday after a former co-defendant, upon whom the State had relied as a witness, failed to give the expected testimony. The defendants were Julius Jensen, 22 years old, a chauffeur, and Ray Brown, 22, a laborer. The State had counted on help from Alva Fisher, 20, a metal finisher. All gave home addresses in Wellston.

On Aug. 8, 1929, Fred Waldman of Jennings, passing his barbecue stand in Bridgeton after having closed for the night, found the door open and several men inside. The men ran out and Waldman pursued them, catching Fisher. In a statement to authorities, Fisher is alleged to have named Jensen, Brown and William Howd, who has not been tried on a pending burglary charge, as his companions at the barbecue stand.

When the case first came up for trial last year it was learned Fisher had been induced to go away and when he was found he said the other defendants had intimidated him. As a result, charges of intimidating a witness are pending against Jensen, Brown and Howd. In March, 1930, Fisher pleaded guilty of burglary after a jury to try him had been chosen. Three weeks later he withdrew the plea. When the trial of Jensen and Brown began, the State dismissed the charge against Fisher.

Called as a witness, Fisher testified that he had been riding with Jensen, Brown and Howd and that they had stopped in front of the barbecue stand but did not enter it. They ran when Waldman approached, he said. His alleged confession was not admissible as evidence because it was not binding on the defendants. Waldman, who was taken into court under an attachment to testify, said Fisher was inside the stand but he could not identify Jensen and Brown as having been inside. An alibi, that they were playing pool in Wellston, was offered by Jensen and Brown. On leaving the court, Fisher was arrested by county authorities and later turned over to the city police for questioning.

BALTIMORE BANKER, FATHER OF ST. LOUISAN, KILLS HIMSELF

John Wesley Marshall, 70, Found Shot to Death on Mezzanine Floor of Depository.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 18. — John Wesley Marshall, 70 years old, who retired Dec. 31 as senior vice president of the Safe Deposit & Trust Co., was found by a clerk shot to death last night on the mezzanine floor of the bank. He is thought to have been despondent since the death, last July, of his wife, Edith Cushing Marshall. The Coroner gave a verdict of suicide.

Marshall served the bank for 47 years, beginning as a clerk in 1884. Although not actively engaged in the business, he remained as a director and had an office in the building, acting in an advisory capacity.

The clerk, Russell Wyatt, was finishing his work and about 6 o'clock heard the report of a pistol. Going to the mezzanine floor he found Marshall, shot through the left temple. A police surgeon pronounced the banker dead.

Mr. Marshall is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robert Oliver, who resides at 10 North Kingshighway. Mrs. Oliver departed for Baltimore last night to attend her father's funeral. Mrs. Oliver's husband is manager of the Belding-Heminway Co., 1718 Washington avenue. They moved to St. Louis from Baltimore about a year ago.

CONKEY P. WHITEHEAD AGAIN SUED FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Wealthy Atlanta and Havana Sportsman Named by Woman in $100,000 Action.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 18.—Conkey P. Whitehead, wealthy Atlanta and Havana sportsman, is involved in his second breach of promise suit within three years. An action for $100,000 was filed in Circuit Court here yesterday by Miss Selina R. Miller, New York.

Early in 1929 Frances Porter, an Atlanta dancer, charged breach of promise by Whitehead and filed suit for $250,000, which was eventually settled out of court. In June of the same year Whitehead was divorced by his first wife, Julia Murphy Whitehead, and on Nov. 14, 1929, he married Marion Dean Hughes, New York, daughter of Walker A. Hughes, broker and sportsman.

No bill of particulars was filed with Miss Miller's suit. E. B. Donnell, her attorney, said she would allege Whitehead had become engaged to her, but that during the last week or more he had evaded her and had shown evidence he did not intend to go through with the marriage contract.

The suit by Miss Porter followed a disagreement aboard Whitehead's yacht, the Malvean, in Havana. It was alleged she struck him with a slipper and stuck him with a hat pin.

Wilbur said he received information to that effect from St. Louis, where the oil interests have been in session for the last few days.

The plan of the states' committee, Wilbur said, was taken by the companies as a good working basis.

HUGE TOOTH FOUND IN CLAY

Dug Up Near E. St. Louis; Thought to Be From Prehistoric Animal.

A huge, well-preserved tooth, thought to be from some prehistoric animal, was found imbedded in clay 20 feet below the ground yesterday by workmen for the Stolle-Casper Quarry Co. of East St. Louis. The tooth, apparently a molar, is 10 inches long, 6¼ inches wide and 3¼ inches thick. The enamel, which is in good condition, is about one-fourth inch thick. The find was made about six miles south of East St. Louis.

F. W. Stolle, president of the quarry company, said he planned to give the tooth to Washington University. No other bones or teeth were found in the vicinity.

CHICAGO, April 18.—James P. Harding, 30 years old, son of a downtown restaurant and nephew of a police captain, drove his automobile into the rear of a stationary street car early today, crushing the conductor, Theodore Switzner, 30, who had stepped out to adjust the trolley wire. Police, who held Harding without charges, said he had been drinking and fought them. His companion, Miss Elizabeth McClaren, 25, was booked on disorderly conduct charges as a material witness and then released. She was dressed in a riding habit.

The preliminary trial of the three men is scheduled to be held before Justice of the Peace John Hunt at Naylor April 25. Smith will be tried according to present plans at the next term of Ripley County Circuit Court here. The bank was closed Nov. 9, 1930.

Says Farmer Faces Peonage Unless He Helps Himself

Head of Springfield, Mo., Producers Warns Against Waiting for Some Political Group to Aid Agriculture..

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROLLA, Mo., April 18.—"If the farmer has to wait, watch and listen for some political group to come along and right the wrongs of agriculture, he is going to be waiting a long time," said C. E. Lane, president of the Producers' Produce Co. of Springfield, Mo., in an address before a group of business men at a luncheon here. "If the farmer's position in life is not equal to that of other groups he must work steadily and co-operatively to make it equal," Lane continued. Legislation might help in many ways, Lane said, but in the last analysis it is up to the farmers themselves to improve their situation.

"The whole aim of the co-operative movement is to get the farmers and the consumers closer together," Lane said. "The extravagance that has been practiced in the handling of the farmer's products has got to be less, or the consumer must pay more. The only other alternative is a group of peons and peasants in American agriculture."

Farmer Must Help Self.

Lane, speaking on the subject, "Are the Principles of the Missouri Farmers' Association Right?" reviewed co-operative handling of agricultural products from its inception in Missouri some 12 years ago down to the present time, during which period the Producers Produce Co., of which he is president, has grown from an humble beginning to the largest single co-operative unit in the world. Lane stated that throughout the progress of his organization it had remained farmer-controlled, and said he would rather be a member of a little county organization, controlled entirely by farmers than hold membership in some national organization under control of other than farmers, for, Lane said, "if the farmers are to succeed and gain ground—keep their own out of the ditch—it has to be done with farm organization under farm control."

At the time of the organization of the Producers' Produce Co., Lane said private competitors laughed at the venture, saying they had nothing to fear from such competition, as "those farmers" didn't know how to do that kind of work. The first few years were dark and gloomy, Lane said, but now "there is no record of any other similar organization under one control doing the volume of business his company is doing."

Has Ability to Economize.

"There is no group or class of people in the world who know better how to economize than the farmer does," Lane said. "Yet, alone, he allows one of the most ridiculous and extravagant wastes in the selling of his produce, which could be sold to so much better advantage co-operatively."

Lane illustrated this point by stating that his own organization handled $5,000,000 worth of eggs and poultry annually, with handling costs cut to a minimum. The profits on eggs handled was 4.6 cents per case—only a fraction of a cent a dozen. Yet, with the vast volume handled the total profit from eggs last month totaled $2000. Lane said the total co-operative business in Springfield last year amounted to between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000.

SAYS HE WAS AUTOMATON TO BANK OF U. S. DIRECTORS

Former Employe Testifies He Drew Checks for Millions, Did Not Know Why.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—The second phase of the trial of four directors of the closed Bank of United States has been closed with the testimony of Hyman S. Lipschutz, once a $150-a-week employe of the bank. Lipschutz told how he had drawn up checks running into millions of dollars without knowing what they meant or why he was doing it. He admitted he acted "merely as an automaton."

The first phase of the trial sought to establish the fact that the bank illegally had lent millions to its affiliates. The second covered the method by which the bank attempted to wipe out the debt. The four directors contend that in marking the debt off the books they had the approval of the State Banking Department. Specifically they contended they violated no law when they authorized a safe deposit company, owned by the bank, to purchase stock in another corporation.

It is expected several directors of the bank will be called as witnesses when the trial is resumed Monday.

CORNELL U. STUDENT ENDS LIFE IN FRATERNITY HOUSE

Paris Youth Shoots Self With Rifle; Thought to Have Been Homesick and Despondent.

By the Associated Press.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 18.—Jere G. Baldwin, 20 years old, Paris, France, a Cornell University sophomore, who was found shot through the head with a rifle in the Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity house here yesterday, committed suicide it was determined at a Coroner's inquest today.

A note reading: "I did it on purpose. Please clean the gun. (Signed) Jere," was found among the student's effects. Previous to the discovery of the note, authorities were puzzled by the circumstances of the shooting. Baldwin was found on the floor of his room by fraternity brothers and was taken to the university infirmary, where he died.

Several fraternity members testified they thought Baldwin was homesick and despondent. His father is a vice president of the General Electric Co. in Paris.

MACDONALD'S CHARGE CAUSES STIR AMONG CONSERVATIVES

Sir Neville Chamberlain Says Statement They Have Sought Deal With Liberals Is Baseless.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 18.—Prime Minister MacDonald, in the course of a speech in Commons yesterday, said that the Conservatives throughout the present Parliament had been trying to induce Liberals to vote with them against the Government by giving them definite assurances they would not be opposed by Conservatives for election at the next polls.

Sir Neville Chamberlain, who until recently was chairman of the Conservative Party, answered today that the Premier's statement was baseless and that MacDonald should have been ashamed to make it without evidence.

MacDonald retorted that Sir Neville had better have known what he was talking about before he said anything.

MOSCOW PAPERS SAY SOVIET TRACTOR PLANT IS FAILURE

Pravda Declares Factory Has Made 3000 Instead of 50,000 Machines in Year.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 18.—The newspaper Pravda, in an editorial criticism, says the Soviet tractor plant at Stalingrad has "practically broken down" and has produced fewer than 3000 tractors during the last year instead of the 50,000 which is supposed to be its annual capacity. The plant was built by Americans and the machinery is all American.

Declaring the condition is "alarming," the newspaper says that, although the factory was supposed to produce 285 tractors during the first five days of April, it had actually turned out only 22. There have been 2783 breaks in the machinery during the last four months, the paper adds, due to inefficiency of the workmen, and out of 1586 tons of tractor parts which were molded 1196 tons had to be scrapped.

"While everybody seems to be doing something, nobody takes any responsibility," Pravda charges. "We have American specialists, but either they are consulted less or their experience is not heeded."

There are about 12,500 employes at Stalingrad, but 1500 of these are superfluous, Pravda charges.

SOUP MAGNATE LEFT PROPERTY APPRAISED AT $114,850,733

Income to Pay $21,500,000 Taxes on Estate of Dr. Dorrance, Head of Campbell Co.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., April 18.—An inventory of the estate of Dr. John T. Dorrance, head of the Campbell Soup Co., who died last September, shows that he was probably the richest resident of New Jersey and one of the wealthiest in the East. In the inventory, filed yesterday, the personal property was appraised at $114,850,733. It was unofficially estimated that the estate would have to pay inheritance taxes amounting to at least $21,500,000.

The State and Federal taxes will be paid from income so that the corpus of the estate will remain intact. The final distribution of the estate will not be made until the tax money has been returned to the corpus through income over a period of not more than 16 years; if the tax money has not bee recovered by 1946, the division will be made anyway.

Until the estate has been reimbursed for the tax money, the widow, who before her marriage was Ethel Mallinckrodt, of Baltimore, Md., will receive one-quarter of the net income from the estate in monthly payments. The son, John T. Dorrance, 11 years old, will receive $20,000 monthly, and each of the four daughters $10,000 monthly. The four daughters are Mrs. Nathaniel P. Hill, who before her marriage in 1927 was Miss Eleanor Dorrance; Miss Ethel Mallinckrodt Dorrance, whose engagement to Tristram C. Colket of Haverford, near Philadelphia, was recently announced; Miss Margaret Winifred Dorrance and Miss Charlotte Kelsey Dorrance.

The largest item in the inventory is Dr. Dorrance's interest in the soup company and it is valued at $79,033,969.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—A mother and her 18-year-old daughter died early today in a fire which swept their flat. Firemen found the bodies of Mrs. Annie Silen, 39 years old, and her daughter, Edith, lying side by side in bed. They apparently were killed by smoke. Nathan Silen, 16, a son, was missing. The cause of the fire was undetermined, but firemen said gas was escaping in the room in which the bodies were found.

It came crashing down from a height of 6000 feet upon this residence in Washington, and went right through to the cellar—that is, the engine and part of the fuselage did. Marriage For Two

by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN.

SHE stared at him. The shallow blue eyes took on opacity that made them hard to fathom.

"Then—what happened—out there—didn't mean—what we thought it meant?"

"How could it?" he asked. "Helen, you don't love me. If you did, our engagement would never have been broken. Your mother could never have made you do that. Not if you'd cared."

"Perhaps," she said, "you'd never have let me, if you'd really cared."

He stared at her. "That may be true," he admitted. "But—that's all ended now. What—just happened—I know you didn't mean it. The impulse"—

"Are you being chivalrous, Larry?" Her voice was mocking.

He shook his head. "I'm just trying to be truthful."

"Sometimes women prefer falsehoods," she reminded him.

"There's been enough of that between us," he retorted.

"You mean—on my side?"

He leaned forward and touched the hand that lay idly on the table edge.

"Helen, let's be friends."

"Why?" she asked.

"Well, why not?" he inquired.

"Do you think we can be?"

"We can try," he told her.

"Have you never heard of the woman scorned?" Her voice was light.

"If I thought you meant that, I'd feel badly," he rejoined. "But a moment—after what we'd been to each other"——

"Of course, I don't mean it. And—you're right," she said. "The moon, the surf, the sight of each other—only—you had no right to tell your wife, Larry. What on earth does she think of me?"

* * *

HE made no reply to this, for Mainwaring, one of the nondescript but well-mannered members of the colony, bowed before her and begged for a dance.

Larry reached for a drink. He needed one, had earned one, he felt. In the short space of 30 minutes he had been spiritually unfaithful to his wife, had discovered that he loved her, had broken the chains—forever—of a previous love affair, had told his wife what he had done—— Oh, it was too mixed up. He drank deeply of the champagne and refilled his glass.

He was lifting it to his lips when Jeanne Mazell's bright voice rebuked him.

"Larry Tracy, put that down," she ordered.

"Why?" he mildly inquired.

"Because you're one American aboard who isn't going to drink too much," she told him.

"Seen signs of my approaching surrender to the demon?" he laughed.

She nodded. "A very beautiful sign."

"And that cryptic remark is, I suppose, perfectly clear?"

"Don't be silly, Larry. Every one here knows about you and Helen Wilson. But they needn't know that seeing her had upset you."

"Will a second glass of champagne inform them of that?" he sneered.

"Too many second glasses will," she replied. "I should think," she went on, "that ordinary good taste would have kept her away."

"Thinking aloud is sometimes rude, Jeanne," he warned her.

"And there are worse things, my silly friend, than rudeness," she retorted. "Larry, do you realize how lovely Joyce is?"

"I'm beginning to," he said.

"Other men don't need as long as you seem to," she said. "Billy Valdemagara has gone in at the deep end already."

"Billy always does, doesn't he?" he commented.

She shook her head.

"Not this way, Larry."

"Well, you should know. He's been your pet particular private beau for—how long, Jeanne?"

"Not ever," she answered. "Billy hasn't ever been any woman's tame cat. Billy likes me, and I like Billy. I'm only fonder of two men, my husband and you, Larry."

"That's sweet of you, Jeanne," he told her.

"I'm not being sweet. I'm being honest. I like you, Larry. And I've fallen in love with your wife. Larry, no man can be blamed for being a fool once; but a second time. * * *"

* * *

SHE shook her head.

"What was the first?" he asked.

"Kissing Helen Wilson where Weedon could see you," she answered.

His eyebrows raised. "So Paul has talked already, eh?"

"And will talk more. You struck him, Larry. He had to talk."

He studied her. "You girls all think alike—and correctly, don't you?"

"Joyce warned me, too," he replied.

"Larry, you incredible child, do you mean that you told Joyce, yourself?"

"Why not? She'd have heard it rather soon, I think. Don't you?"

She ignored the question.

"You didn't tell her because you were afraid some one else would, Larry. Oh, Larry Tracy, don't you know that the time to tell a woman you love her is not when you've just discovered it?"

"You're not by any chance, given to this sort of thing, are you? It must be rather disconcerting to your intimates, Jeanne."

"Oh, I've not been reading your mind, my child," she laughed. "One doesn't do that sort of thing, Larry. One reads one's own mind, guesses that some one else has reacted in the same way—Larry, dear boy, I didn't know I loved Jim until—well, there was some one else. Jim—bless him—lets me do as I please. Always has. And—Jim's older and—understands. But I didn't understand. And some one else—yes, there was a kiss, too, Larry, and I ran straight to Jim, and told him what I'd just found out, that I adored him and no one else. Do you see?"

"Then you did exactly what I did."

"But with a woman it's different, Larry. But no man would understand. You should have waited—waited until Helen Wilson's gone—what did Joyce say? No, I didn't mean to ask that. It's none of my business. In fact, none of this is my business, but—your wife is sweet, Larry."

"I've discovered that," he said drily.

"So have others, and so will more," she told him.

"You were, I believe, about to warn me about Billy"——

"Don't be silly. Billy's a gentleman. But breeding doesn't always protect a man from himself, you know. Larry, don't neglect"——

"Oh, my God, don't make me laugh, Jeanne," he interrupted.

"If there's neglect, it will be hers. Not that she won't be right about it"——

"I wish," sighed Jeanne, "that there were no such thing as sex loyalty. But there is, and I'm a slave to it. With which cryptic remark the beautiful young matron indicated her desire to be asked to dance, and the gentleman"——

"Rose to the occasion. Mrs. Mazell, will you do me the great honor to aid me in knocking a few Argentinians off this here, now, dancing floor?"

* * *

AS they glided out upon the floor, the Marquis and Joyce returned to the table. The two women smiled at each other, but Valdemagara's nod to Larry was none too cordial.

As they sat down Joyce noted a cut on the knuckles of Billy's right hand.

"You're bleeding," she said.

He nodded carelessly. "Hit it against something."

Joyce eyed him.

"Not since we started dancing?" But of course not. When?"

He avoided her eyes. "Outside—on a rock."

She shifted the subject suddenly.

"Why are you offended with Larry?"

His amazement was too great.

"Offended? With your husband? My dear Mrs. Tracy"——

"Why?" she flatly interrupted.

"I don't know what you are talking about," he protested. "Larry is one of my best friends"——

"Which always adds to the gravity of the offense," she said "Why Billy?"

"Aren't you being a bit serious without reason?" he asked.

"Perhaps you have been serious—without reason," she countered.

"Let's dance," he abruptly suggested.

"We've danced enough Billy," she said gently. "So—Mr. Weedon has been talking already, eh?"

Valdemagara blushed deeply. "I don't know what you mean," he muttered.

"And you struck him. That was rather fine of you, Billy, even if it's the one thing that will make him talk the more. You see, Larry has already struck him, yet—he talked."

"Larry struck him?"

"Of course. Men are like that. They never realize that blows only have effect upon the brave, who are humiliated by them. The coward—and that's why you were cool to Larry. You expect too much of men, Billy, and being a man you should know that."

"I wasn't cool to Larry," he protested.

"Then you didn't believe Weedon?"

"What do you know about all this, anyway?" he asked.

"Only that Larry has already told me. You see, he kissed the lady. Weedon saw them, and—Larry came to me."

"The idiot," exclaimed Valdemagara.

"So another person—of my own sex—said. But I don't feel that way. I—after all, it was decent of him."

The Marquis' eyes met hers. "Then you've forgiven him? Joyce—you are my friend and I am your friend, and I shall always call you Joyce—you have forgiven him?"

"Ah, that is something else," she replied. "To respect a man for his honesty, does not mean that one forgives him for—other matters. Now—shall we dance again?"

The Divorce Mill Meets Competition

GOV. FRED B. BALZAR.

Reno Has No Intention of Letting Its Modern Bonanza Pan Out So New Laws Are Passed to Attract Those Who Want to Have the Wedding Knot Untied.

WHEN the great bonanza at Virginia City, Nev., 22 miles from Reno, panned out, that roaring mining camp diminished from a metropolis of about 40,000 population in the '70s to a skeleton of its former self, with 400 residents today.

Reno is determined to profit by the example, and prevent its modern bonanza, the great gold and silver lode of its easy divorce laws, from panning out. It is meeting all competition, by going that competition one or more better. The newest bid to hold the business goes into effect May 1, and permits a divorce after a residence of six weeks. It also eliminates the necessity of making specific allegations in the petition, and has a companion measure allowing the holding of hearings behind closed doors.

And that the six weeks need not be spent unprofitably, either to the prospective customers or the state, gambling houses are wide open.

Reno just won't be beat. When it still had the 90-day divorce law, Boise, Idaho, hoped at least to stay in the running by getting through a 90-day law for that state. But all it could offer was the short time. As Mrs. Maude Largent Cosho, a State representative, commented in asserting Nevada's gambling facilities prevented competition:

"Visitors would go back East and say they had to sit around for three months and crochet. That isn't as good advertising as we are getting from spuds and Senator Borah."

* * *

THE six weeks' law wouldn't have been necessary for Reno to compete with Boise, but Hot Springs became a strong rival when Arkansas passed a 90-day law. Arkansas didn't have legalized gambling, but Hot Springs rates pretty high, divorce or no divorce, as a place to while away a few days or weeks. Especially since the Government is taking a hand in the bathing facilities by improving the National Park. For one thing, no one could be absolutely certain whether the visitor was there to recover from a nervous breakdown or from matrimony. And the visitor could recover from both at the same time, thereby keeping up American standards of efficiency. But the true matrimonial sufferers want speed, and six weeks of suspense is better spent counteracted by the suspense of the gaming table, than 12 weeks in hot water literally and figuratively.

Besides, Reno has the reputation. The closed-doors-hearing measure may draw some custom, but publicity offers a good chance to keep friends informed without the bother of sending out announcements. When someone goes to Reno, the purpose is pretty obvious.

Lest the city seems a trifle biased on the side of divorces, it may be well to mention that it does a thriving trade in marriages. There are no hindrances placed in the way of marriage other than the regular procedure, so in addition to the newly freed tying other knots, many Californians cross the State line, 11 miles away. California requires three days to elapse between the issuing of a certificate and the ceremony, that the participants may not act too hastily.

* * *

THE divorce business is estimated to bring into Reno more than $3,000,000 annually, by way of lawyers' fees, court costs, hotel bills, and incidentals. It will probably be more in the future, for the wide open gambling law will mean a big revenue to the city as well as State from licenses. During the past year, 2149 divorces were granted; occasionally a divorce is refused, but so rarely that the income from the failure is negligible. As the city has a population of only 18,000, it is not especially troubled by hard times.

Virtually all forms of gambling became legal in Nevada March 20, when Gov. Fred B. Balzar signed the gambling bill, and at the same time the six-weeks' divorce bill. Reno promptly went gambling mad, and its gaming tables were crowded to capacity. Oh, yes, it already had them. Not quite so many before as after, and not officially, but it never has been hard to find a place in Reno to court Dame Chance.

"It's all nonsense trying to regulate people's morals by law," Mayor E. E. Roberts of Reno said when the law passed. "For eight years I've been trying to make Reno a place where everybody can do what they please—just so they don't interfere with other people's rights. Now we can do lawfully what Nevada has always done under cover. I don't think it will increase revenues much. The city has been deriving about $35,000 a year from card games."

The chief effect of the wide-open law was to increase the patronage of places already in operation.

* * *

IT is quite evident that Reno is not a place of tears, except those brought to court for effect, even though it is the burying ground for innumerable romances. The chief worry is the possibility that the other party to the severance may not co-operate and the divorce will be granted by default, which is not legal in all states. To counteract that are the gambling places, some of them in leading clubs, the clubs themselves, and constant parties. And always the diversion of going to the station and seeing off the "residents" of Nevada who have been successful in their missions and are going home.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts Edited by Dr. Iago Galdston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Nervous Indigestion—III

WHILE such intense emotions as pain, anger, fright or disgust may arrest and disturb digestion, they are not as frequently the cause of nervous indigestion as the less intense but more enduring emotional states such as worry, anxiety, chronic fatigue or psychic disturbances.

One can be "on edge" for weeks with no adequate appreciation of how tense one's "nerves" are, or so engrossed in important work that all consciousness of the body's workings is lost, but the accumulated effect of such an existence may be felt when the victim awakens one day to find his digestion upset.

The upset may be accompanied by widely distributed but vague pains over the entire abdomen, or sharp pains confined to one region. Or there may be continuous diarrhea, severe constipation, or, less frequently, vomiting.

Whatever the form of the upset, and always barring organic disease, such as ulcers, gall stones, cancer, etc., the condition is the end result of some certain forces which interfere with the regular cycle of the digestive process.

It is interesting at this point to inquire why is it not possible to give the digestive system decent food and have it go on with the job of converting it into useful fuel, without being affected by the brain or the state of one's emotions.

There is no adequate answer to this query. The body neither in structure nor in function conforms to what we consider logical. Furthermore, some individuals are so constituted that little affects their digestion.

Appearing valid as an explanation, in part at least, is the point that modern civilization makes demands upon the human machine far in excess of its capacities. Nervous indigestion appears largely to be the result of antagonistic demands made on the one hand by the human body and on the other by the day's needs.

WHAT'S NEW IN LINENS

By BETH BUCHANAN.

FOR the last few years the white sales haven't been white at all, but a myriad of rainbow colors. But this year there's a tendency toward white again—white and the lightest pastels. The new shades are much more delicate in tone than those of former years.

Bed linens are being chosen almost entirely in white. It's practical, and somehow people like the idea of sleeping between spotless white sheets.

Color is principally confined to the borders in today's linens.

A rich shade of ivory leads in the favorite colors for table linens. It blends well in either old-fashioned or modern dining rooms. Shades of luscious peach, gold and the palest green are also popular.

Those who like the newest in table settings will want to see the rayon cloths, which have a lustrous finish. The most effective ones are perfectly plain, with wide borders of the lighter side weave.

Half fold dinner napkins are being used, as well as the conventional square ones. These oblong napkins are only folded once when placed across the lap.

Hostesses no longer consider damask cloths the only type for formal entertaining. Beautiful cloths of net, cutwork and filet show the wood of the table to advantage. Most of these are in the natural linen shade.

The Spanish linens are especially attractive this year. One store has imported striking-looking cloths of fish net, a square open weave with contrasting solid bands, or geometric designs. Sometimes they have a bit of green or yellow woven in.

The Spanish filet cloths which another store is showing have more character than most of the filets we've seen formerly. These have an unusual feature, closely woven centers, which make the filet work seem ever so much richer in contrast. Sometimes the borders are solid and the cloth has a filet center.

For luncheon sets, hand-woven Bisso or church linen is lovely. It's almost as sheer as the Japanese linens that you've seen, only not so waxy in finish. And the weave is much more even. Being made in Italy, it is trimmed with some form of Italian embroidery.

Printo ombra or shadow embroidery trims some of the exclusive luncheon sets and bridge cloths. It's done on the wrong side and almost looks like an applique in its subtle outlining.

If you've been looking longingly at Assisi work for the last few years when it was expensive, you'll rejoice to know it's cheaper now. The Chinese women are making it for much less than the Italian women used to ask. You've these smart little Orientals to thank for being able to get handmade filet cloths at absurdly low prices, too.

For informal lunch and breakfast the French Basque sets are delightful. These inexpensive linens aren't linen at all, but heavy, closely woven cotton, which will wear for years. They have woven stripes and checks of red, blue and bright colors that harmonize with gay pottery dishes. The borders are fringed.

If your bath linens were bought before the days of colored towels you needn't regret it any longer. Some of the most expensive towels are white these days—and white with the old-fashioned colored borders. Beige is one of the newest shades for towels. It's charming bordered in henna or turquoise. Creamy yellows and the paler pastels are also being shown.

We're glad to hear that those dinky little guest towels which people hesitate to soil are being replaced by soft, absorbent huck ones in the best of homes. Our idea of the height of inhospitality is to hang a few "finger towels" by the wash basin. These flimsy little things are not even adequate to dry the entire hand.

Hamburg Casserole

One pound hamburg steak, two onions, four slices of bacon, one can kidney beans, one quart tomato pulp, salt, pepper. Dice bacon and cook with chopped onions until the onions are a golden brown. Mix with the steak, beans and tomatoes. Season and pour into a buttered casserole. Sprinkle top with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven for three-fourths of an hour.

Speaking From Experience

by MARTHA CARR

DEAR MRS. CARR: I have read the letters of Business Man and Old-Fashioned and also your comments thereon. I am inclined to agree with both Old-Fashioned and Business Man. I am wondering if perhaps you have not read the comment of the Rev. Richard E. Morton, Boston University student preacher who had the courage to take the mask off the modern girl and, in a lecture warning young men of the ignoble characteristics of this species, took her off her pedestal.

How true the phrase he used: "The modern girl is a pleasure-mad parasite!" For the benefit of those who do not know what a parasite is, let them be reminded that a parasite is a creature that ekes out an existence on the toil of others. Yes, the modern girl expects everything and has nothing to give in return; not sympathy, comfort or understanding.

Marriage is a risky thing for young men these days. It usually turns out to be much worse than the state it is supposed to remedy, namely, loneliness. We must pull the girl from her pedestal for her own good and teach her that with her acquired liberty she must assume responsibilities of men. If not willing to do this, then give up the prerogatives of men. Certainly she cannot want both to be coddled as an angel, to demand courtesies as a woman and also the same rights as a man. O, selfishness, thy name is woman!

WOMAN-HATER.

If you read Old-Fashioned carefully, you will remember that her chief condemnation of women was directed, not at the parasite, but at the woman who left the portals of her own home to go to work.

You think that "acquiring the prerogatives of men"; that is, I suppose, being self-sustaining and entering into competition with men's work, is not to be desired. And yet you do not approve of her living on her husband's labor. In making a home and fulfilling the duties connected with it (which undoubtedly most women do to the best of their ability) is she not doing her part?

"Parasite" is a very old word that has been applied from time immemorial to a "no-account." It applies equally well to a "no-account" of 1930 and a "no-account" of 1931. And there were men of 1930 who also signed themselves, "Woman Hater."

Cosmo Hamilton, playwright, short story writer, novelist, traveler and sophisticate, is quoted as saying, "The reason men evade love is not because women do not interest men, as they claim, but deep in their hearts they are aware that they are inferior to the modern woman. They do not feel at ease with her and are unable to handle her intelligently. Women today are better educated than men. They are charming, attractive, radiantly healthy young creatures who have wonderful spirit. They are determined to do what they can to live to the utmost."

"A man of today," he continues, "hardly bestirs himself to make love. But no red-blooded, real man would allow a woman to play a lone hand in the game of love. He will not accept all and give nothing. He must not try to hide his dullness under a mask of indifference and conceit. He must pay a woman compliments—but sincere ones. Women are too alert, to be fooled by a half lazy courtship.

"In giving out jobs, I find many young men too lazy and smug to make a success of their work. That is why the women are edging them out of many fields of endeavor. Even debutantes referring to the class so often spoken of as parasites, are doing splendid things in hospitals, the slums and charity affairs. Women are now the ones eager to learn."

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

* * *

DEAR MRS. CARR: I wonder if you could find a few minutes' time to help me. Perhaps it is out of your line, but I have to confide in someone, so I am trusting in you. I am 32 years of age and know I am the most miserable human alive. Now here is my trouble. I have a face and neck and arms covered with freckles—hundreds of them. I have tried everything under the sun to get rid of them.

I am ashamed to go anywhere and try never to go out in the sun or wind and the folks I work with are always urging me to do something. I don't know what it means to walk out in the sunshine on a lovely day, all because I am ashamed to show my face. If you can only help me, I'll feel that life is worth living.

A. V.

I am sure that the freckles are a very real tragedy to you, but you have grown morbid over them and I think it quite as necessary, if not more so, for you to get them out of your mind as well as off your face. I know several people who have them, who are so delightful to know and such fine friends, that I forget about it until someone speaks of them. Remember this, though. They never mention freckles themselves unless it is in a joking way. It is the same with other physical blemishes, sometimes even a real deformity; if the person afflicted does not give them too much importance, others are not likely to do so.

I cannot recommend cosmetics of any kind and you have probably tried the old-fashioned remedies—lemon juice, diluted, and buttermilk; the latter used at night, and the former after washing the face in the morning. It is said this will make them paler. One thing I can say: When you go into the sunlight, always protect your skin with a good powder. But don't stay out of the sunlight; that you need inside as well as out.

* * *

DEAR MRS. CARR: You have helped others. Won't you please help me? I just can't seem to keep a fellow interested in me. They like me but as time goes on, they drift away from me. I am rather quiet, but I don't believe that has anything to do with it. Can't you find the answer, Martha?

If there is one, you are the one who can find it. At present I am very interested in a certain one. Do you think if I am very jolly and talkative that I may keep him longer? Please answer this as soon as possible and give me the information to make me happy.

BABE II.

If there are any set rules for holding the attentions of the drifting male, I do not know what they are. I think in many cases the girls are too anxious to do so and that is always fatal. Men like to be the pursuers; that is, if a girl stalks juts a little, the man should be kept in ignorance of it. Try finding out what interests the gentleman, and take a natural interest in it as you would in anything that concerns any friend. Of course be cheerful. But don't have a conniption fit every time he appears.

Organdie and Taffeta In Summer Styles

A SUMMER style which is achieving sufficient endorsement is the alliance of organdie and taffeta. Organdie dresses over taffeta slips are the favorite version of this fashion, and frequently the taffeta is repeated in a sash ending in a large bow. Silk organdie in plain colors or decorated with embroidered, printed or eyelet motifs, is used in exclusive versions.

The popular-priced variation is apt to substitute cotton organdie for the silk type, but retains the silk taffeta foundation. Taffeta in plain pastel colors is utilized in this fashion, and there is also some demand for Dolly Varden warp-prints for foundations under white or delicate nude-pink or peach organdies.

Ham and Egg Sandwiches

Two cups minced ham, four eggs, two teaspoons prepared mustard, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one chopped pimento, toast. Mix the ingredients together and saute in butter as you would fritters. Each little flat cake must be fitted between two rounds of hot buttered toast, cut into quarters and served immediately. Delicious.

Get the house plants out into the refreshing spring rains and see how quickly they thrive after their long winter. Rainwater contains carbonic acid and ammonia, which serve as fertilizers.

EASY MARK
YEARS AGO, OUR HOBO CITIZENRY LEARNED THE ADVANTAGE OF MAKING SECRET CHALK MARKS IN FRONT OF HOUSES WHERE IT WAS EASY TO OBTAIN HAND-OUTS. THEY TAUGHT US TO APPLY "EASY MARK" TO PEOPLE EASILY IMPOSED UPON.
A WOMAN HAS MORE RIBS THAN A MAN
THIS FALLACY AROSE FROM THE ACCOUNT OF THE CREATION GIVEN IN GENESIS, AND MANY PEOPLE STILL BELIEVE IT. MEN AND WOMEN HAVE THE SAME NUMBER OF RIBS.
"JUST FOR A LARK"
THIS FREQUENTLY USED REFERENCE TO FUN-MAKING HAS NO CONNECTION WITH BIRDS. THE ANGLO-SAXON WORD "LAC" MEANT SPORT OR PLAY. IT WAS CORRUPTED INTO "LARK" AND GAVE US THIS EXPRESSION.

SALES FALL OFF 6.62 PCT. HERE IN LAST 12 MONTHS

Merchants' and Manufacturers' Business Drops $80,871,000 in Fiscal Year Ending April 10.

4631 FEWER AUTO LICENSES ISSUED

Depression Hard on the Dogs Too, Collector Chapman Reports—Hotels Show a Slight Gain.

St. Louis merchants and manufacturers suffered a loss in sales during the last 12 months amounting to $80,871,000, or 6.62 per cent, according to the annual report of License Collector Chapman, presented to Mayor Miller yesterday.

During the fiscal year ending April 10 merchants reported total sales of $516,371,000, against $601,283,000 in the previous 12 months, a decrease of $54,912,000, or 9.1 per cent. Stocks of merchandise carried were reported at $54,702,300, a decrease of $2,410,500. Some of the sales decrease can be traced to lower commodity prices and not entirely to volume.

Manufacturers announced sales totaling $593,263,000, compared with $619,222,000, a decrease of $25,959,000, or 4.2 per cent. The value of merchandise carried was given as $62,108,800, a decrease of $3,182,000.

Merchants and manufacturers are taxed for license purposes at the rate of $1 a thousand on sales and $12.70 a thousand on stock carried.

Tax Revenue Drops.

Manufacturers numbered 1866, and the tax collected was $1,082,109.77. The decrease in tax revenue was $72,128.41, and in the number of licensed manufacturers 74.

There were 16,345 licensed merchants paying a total fee of $1,241,129.86. For the year there were 793 fewer merchants and the tax revenue was $75,170.79 less.

Although fewer automobiles were licensed in 1931 the total fees collected, based on horsepower, was only slightly less than in 1930. The figures for 1931 were 149,477 cars with fees of $579,935 against 154,108 machines and $580,369.75 in 1930. Licensed motorcycles also decreased in numbers with 539 machines and $988 in fees in 1930, against 472 machines and $872 this year. Bicycles licensed this year numbered 457 at $1 each, an increase of one.

The depression was especially hard on the dogs. This year 3710 dog licenses at $2 each were sold, against 4613 during the previous year.

Brokers and Hotels Gain.

Stock and bond brokers showed a slight gain in numbers with 174 paying $15,225 in fees, against 171 whose licenses totaled $14,962.50 the previous year.

There was also a slight gain in receipts from hotels, 299 paying $7001.50, against 292 paying $6134.75. Several billiard hall licenses were not renewed, the number at present being 347, paying $20,700, against 409 with licenses totaling $24,920.

The railway mill tax figures, paid by the Public Service Co., are $194,870.34, against $223,714.69 during the previous fiscal year. The 3 per cent gross tax on motorbus receipts amounted to $73,129.51 last year, compared with $76,517.58 the year before.

The apple sellers are reflected in the 3898 peddlers' licenses, an increase of 756. Due to the temporary nature of many of the permits the receipts from a larger number of licenses were less than those of the previous year. The fees were $15,230 against $15,866.70.

There are 213 fewer restaurants than previously, the present number being 3041, paying $28,910.

Boxing Gets Financial Knockout.

Fees from boxing exhibitions show a decrease that indicates a financial knockout to promoters. Twenty-one shows during the last 12 months paid $2,675.10 on the basis of receipts, against $11,350.19 from 24 exhibitions the year before.

Gasoline taxes, levied at half a cent a gallon, were higher than those of the previous year, the totals being $383,517.05 against $361,416.96.

Fifty-four pawn shops paid fees amounting to $10,800, this being a decrease of four establishments and $800 in fees.

Theaters increased from 174 to
